Common Core Document Forming Part of the Reports

I. Profile of the Nation Submitting the Reports

A. Demographic, Economic, Social and Cultural Characteristics

1. Taiwan is a democracy with cultural diversity and economic prosperity, and its people practice freedom of worship in a variety of religions. The country boasts diverse landscapes and rich ecological environments. Many people of different ethnic backgrounds and countries have since been attracted to this land. Taiwan's history and culture are significantly influenced by the Chinese and Austronesian cultures. The colonial regimes of the Netherlands, Spain, and Japan, as well as new immigrants from Asia in recent years, also left their cultural legacies on this island nation. Nowadays, the influence of diverse cultures is evident in Taiwanese cuisine and languages.
2. The Republic of China was founded in 1912, at which time the total area under its jurisdiction was 11,418,174 square kilometers. In December 1949, the R.O.C. government relocated to Taiwan and has since held control over the following territories: Taiwan island, Penghu, Kinmen, Matsu, the Tungsha (Pratas) Islands, the Chungsha (Macclesfield Bank) Islands, the Shisha (Paracel) Island, and the Nansha (Spratly) Islands, the collective of which will hereinafter be referred to simply as "Taiwan." The total area under the country's jurisdiction is 36,197.067 square kilometers.

Demographic Indicators

3. Taiwan's current population composition is dominated by Han Chinese, accounting for 96.6% of the total population; and 2.6% are from indigenous ethnic groups. According to a survey conducted in 2021, the Hakka population (Hakka, as defined by the Hakka Basic Act, are those who have Hakka ancestry or heritage or those who identify themselves as Hakka) totaled approximately 4,669,000, representing 19.8% of the total population. People of Mongolian origin currently total 442 in 205 households in Taiwan, while people of Tibetan origin currently total 684 in 357 households. In addition, immigrants with registered permanent residence account for 1.2%¹ of the total population. Inter-marriage between ethnic groups is common, and different groups have converged gradually over time.
4. As of 2024, there were 1,074,454 foreigners residing in Taiwan with valid Alien Resident Certificates (ARC), 537,829 (50.06%) of whom were male and 536,625 (49.94%) of whom were female. Among these, migrant workers constituted the largest number of 787,059, accounting for 73.25%; followed by students at 84,726 (7.89%). The next largest categories of foreigners consisted of dependent immigrants at 68,685 (6.39%); professionals at 40,726 (3.79%); investors at 403 (0.04%); missionaries at 1,571 (0.15%); permanent residents at 41,084 (3.82%); and others at 50,200 (4.67%).
5. The most common language is still Mandarin. The monolingual policy adopted by the R.O.C. in the past has led to the severe loss of languages of certain groups. To protect and revitalize the languages of different ethnicities in Taiwan and Taiwan Sign Language, the government has established/amended the Indigenous Languages Development Act, Hakka Basic Act, and Development of National Languages Act from 2017 to 2019. These legislations grant equal rights to languages of all ethnicities and Taiwan Sign Language before the law. In 2021, a draft of the Hakka Language Development Act was formulated to strengthen the development of the Hakka language in traditional Hakka regions from a legal and institutional perspective.
6. Affected by the COVID-19 pandemic, Taiwan's total population showed negative growth between 2021 and 2022. Meanwhile, the population growth in 2023 turned positive, amounting to a 6.7‰ growth due to the easing of the pandemic. The sex ratio has been decreasing on a yearly basis, and the population density shows a fluctuating downward trend. Table 1 shows Taiwan's total population, population growth, sex ratio, and population density between 2021 and 2024.

- This shows a gradual decrease in the number of younger people and a gradual increase in the number of older people. Between 2021 and 2024, the population aged 0-14 fell from 2,889,908 to 2,742,386 (representing 11.72% of the total); whereas the population aged 15-64 decreased from 16,546,373 to 16,169,127 (representing 69.10% of the total); and the population aged 65 and above increased from 3,939,033 to 4,488,707 (representing 19.18% of the total).
- The dependency ratio² amounted to 41.27 in 2021, 42.21 in 2022, 43.42 in 2023, and 44.72 in 2024, showing a year-on-year upward trend from 2021 to 2024. Demographic statistics for the period 2021-2024 are presented in Table 2.

- Taiwan is becoming a society with a declining birthrate, with the number of births dropping from 153,820 in 2021 to 134,856 in 2024. The crude birth rate dropped from 6.55‰ in 2021 to 5.76‰ in 2024. Meanwhile, Taiwan is also considered a country with low mortality rates. The number of deaths was 183,732 in 2021, 207,230 in 2022, 205,368 in 2023, and 202,107 in 2024. The crude death rates in the last four years were 7.83‰, 8.89‰, and 8.63‰, respectively, as shown in Figure 1.

² The dependency ratio measures the percentage of the population aged 14 and below plus the population aged 65 and above relative to the population aged 15 to 64 years old, i.e., the number of dependent population supported for every 100 working people.

10. Changes in the unmarried, married, divorced, and widowed populations aged 15 and above as percentages of the total population aged 15 and above, as well as the percentage of children born to married couples and out of wedlock between 2021 and 2024 are as follows: The proportion of the unmarried population fell from 34.08% to 33.99%; the proportion of the married population fell from 49.93% to 49.33%; the proportion of the divorced population increased from 9.16% to 9.67%; and the proportion of the widowed population increased from 6.84% to 7.01%. The percentages of children born to married couples from 2021 to 2024 amounted to 96.16%, 95.98%, 96.04% and 96.07%, respectively; while children born out of wedlock (including children without a competent parent or guardian) amounted to 3.84%, 4.02%, 3.96% and 3.93%, respectively.
11. Taiwan is a country with low fertility rates. The fertility rates of women at childbearing age from 2021 to 2024 amounted to 0.975, 0.87, 0.865 and 0.885, respectively.
12. Amid a downward trend, the average number of people per household from 2021 to 2024 amounted to 2.60 persons, 2.56 persons, 2.53 persons, and 2.47 persons, respectively.
13. The national and indigenous peoples' life expectancy at birth from 2021 to 2023 is as shown in Table 3.

15. Since the introduction of the Indigenous Peoples Status Act in 2001, there has been an increase in the number of people seeking to reinstate or acquire indigenous identity. Table 5 shows the population distribution of indigenous peoples over the age of 15 in 2024. Table 6 shows demographic statistics of indigenous people by region in 2024.

16. The ratio of persons with disabilities as a proportion of total population amounted to 5.15% in 2021, 5.14% in 2022, 5.19% in 2023, and 5.27% in 2024. An analysis of the number of persons with disabilities and an analysis of the gender and grade of disability of persons with disabilities from 2021 to 2024 are presented in Table 7 and Table 8, respectively.

17. In 2023, there were 56,876 persons who exercised rights and obligations for minor children, of which 22,359 (39.31%) were mothers (including foster mothers), followed by fathers at 17,362 (30.53%) (including foster fathers), and the remaining 17,155 (30.16%) were jointly borne by both parties. Compared with 2021, the proportion of rights and obligations jointly borne by both parties increased from 26.87% to 30.16%. In addition, the reasons for the exercise of rights and obligations for minor children from 2021 to 2023 were mostly due to parents' divorce, accounting for nearly 90% of the total, followed by adoption, and the death or disappearance of one of the parents. The statistics of cases related to the exercise of rights and obligations for minor children from 2021 to 2023 by custodial guardians and reasons are shown in Table 9.

18. The economic conditions of the indigenous population remain relatively disadvantaged, averaging an annual income of NT$762,000 in 2021, a 4.71% increase from 2017 and approximately 0.63% times the nationwide average. In addition, the indigenous population continued to move from their ancestral lands to urban areas, leading to the proportion of the indigenous population owning a residence in urban areas to increase to 76.66%, up 2.31% compared to 2017. Although it was still lower than the national average of 84.50% (as of the end of 2023), relevant housing subsidy policy efforts can be seen to produce results. In terms of the income distribution of indigenous households by five quintiles, the average disposable income of the top 20% of households was 6.15 times that of the bottom 20%, a significant decrease from 7.35 times in 2017, and the same as 6.15 times for all households. The Gini coefficient for indigenous households was 0.356, slightly higher than the national average of 0.341. The inequality in income distribution was greater than that of all households in Taiwan, but has seen gradual improvement in recent years.
19. The Constitution and the Primary and Junior High School Act require citizens between ages 6 and 15 to receive mandatory education. Furthermore, the Compulsory Education Act was enacted to make enrollment in schools compulsory, prevent dropping out, as well as regulate the tracking and counseling mechanisms for school reentry.
20. Table 10 shows the amount of average annual employment remuneration and current transfer receipts per household between 2021 and 2023. The amount and percentage of current transfer receipts have been increasing on a long-term basis, with government subsidies and social insurance schemes accounting for about 70%.

21. Low-income households are defined as families that earn less than the lowest living index, and have undergone asset review procedures (for liquid assets and real assets). The lowest living index varies depending on the place of residence. In July 2011, changes were made to the Public Assistance Act to extend social assistance to more people. As of September 2019, 300,866 people (1.28% of the total population) were identified as belonging to low-income households, which represented an increase of 24,738 from levels before the amendment (June 2011). Among them, 160,715 were male and 140,151 were female, which represents 1.37% and 1.18% of their respective gender population. These percentages were similar to each other. Compared to the conditions before the amendment (June 2011), the number of male and female belonging to low-income households increased by 19,657 and 5,081, respectively. Table 11 shows the status of nationwide households and low-income households between 2021 and 2024.

22. As a result of the worldwide financial crisis in 2009, the quintile ratio (i.e., the ratio between the income of the top and bottom quintile) of household disposable income widened to 6.34, and the Gini coefficient increased to 0.345. By 2023, the quintile ratio had fallen to 6.12, while the Gini coefficient was also down to 0.339. Analysis of the spending of the highest and lowest income group households revealed housing as the largest expenditure, representing 21.6% in the high-income group and 31.2% in the lowest income group. Food was the next largest expenditure, representing 24.3% and 27.6% in the respective income groups. With regard to healthcare expenditure, the wide availability of healthcare services has kept expenditures at 17% and 18% for the highest and lowest income groups, respectively. Lastly, education expenditure represented only 0.5% in households of the lowest income group given their smaller family size and higher average age; in households of the highest income group, education expenditure represented 4.0% of total spending. In 2022, national health expenditure (NHE) amounted to NT$1.6951 trillion (or 7.5% of GDP). The NHE per capita was NT$72,687. Based on detailed analysis of the NHE, personal healthcare comprised the largest share at 82.7%. Meanwhile, the public sector accounted for 63.0% and the private sector accounted for 37.0%, respectively.
23. The net elementary school enrollment rate of children aged 6-11 was 96.69% in 2024—96.79% for boys and 96.58% for girls (a difference of 0.21 percentage points). The net elementary school enrollment rate of children aged 12-14 was 96.9% in 2024—96.87% for boys and 96.94% for girls (a difference of only 0.07 percentage points). Over the last five years, net elementary school and junior high school enrollment rates remained comparable between 96% and 98%, respectively, with no significant difference.
24. In 2024, 99.32% of population aged 15 and above were literate. This was a 0.29 percentage point increase over 2020, and is currently on a rising trend. Literacy rate of population aged 15 to 34 is

⁸ The percentage of the population below minimum food expenditure is calculated based on the minimum food spending of US$2.15 per person per day. (Approximately NT$32 when converted using IMF's PPP; the PPP in 2015 to 2023 was 16.02, 15.99, 15.58, 15.57, 15.27, 14.65, 14.40, 13.71, and 13.57, respectively.)

100% because of the mandatory 9-year education program. There was no significant difference between literacy rates of the two genders in the population aged 35 to 59. However, a small percentage of people aged 60 and above were still affected by traditional values that attached less importance to education and literacy for women. Nevertheless, this phenomenon is slowly disappearing. In 2024, the literacy rate of the male population aged 15 and above was 99.89%, 1.12 percentage points higher than the literacy rate of the female population (98.77%).

¹⁰ The employed population in this table includes data from the “farming, forestry, fishery, and animal husbandry”, as well as “industrial” and “service” sectors.

¹¹ Employment rate refers to the proportion of the civilian population over the age of 15 who are employed. Civilian population refers to nationals over the age of 15, discounting the armed forces, the incarcerated population, and missing persons. It includes all people who are classified as labor force and not in labor force.

27. There were 357,340 street vendors as of June 2023, a decrease of 118,358 vendors (24.88%) from August 2018. Female vendors accounted for 54.13% (193,437 people), a decrease of more than 67,135 over 5 years. Male vendors accounted for 45.87% (163,903 people) a decrease of approximately 51,223.

30. Between 2020 and September 2024, the percentage of women among nationwide civil servants increased from 42.31% to 43.37%. The percentage of women among political appointees increased from 22.13% to 25.00%. The percentage of women among indigenous civil servants increased from 37.33% to 40.72%. The percentage of women among indigenous political appointees increased from 31.25% to 53.33%.

Right to Health Indicators

31. In 2023, there were 12 maternal deaths in total. The leading causes of death were postpartum hemorrhage, ectopic pregnancy, and obstetric embolism. The statistics on the number of maternal deaths and mortality rates from 2021 to 2023 are shown in Table 17.

¹³ Rates based on fewer than 20 deaths are omitted due to reliability concerns. They are denoted by an asterisk (*).

32. There were 133,895 births recorded in 2023, with a crude infant death rate of 4.3 per 1,000 live births and a crude neonatal death rate of 2.8 per 1,000 live births. The leading causes of infant mortality were: The main causes of infant mortality were congenital malformations, deformations, and chromosomal abnormalities (15.7%); respiratory disorders originating in the perinatal period (15.6%); disorders related to length of gestation and fetal growth (13.3%); accidental injuries (5.7%); and infections specific to the perinatal period (4.2%). The top five causes combined accounted for 54.5% of infant deaths.
33. According to the 2021 National Health Interview Survey (NHIS), the contraceptive prevalence rate among women aged 20 to 49 who are married or have a stable cohabiting partner and require contraception is 67.7%.
34. The leading causes of death in 2023 were malignant neoplasms, heart diseases, pneumonia, cerebrovascular diseases, mellitus, coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19), hypertensive diseases, accidental injury, chronic lower respiratory diseases, nephritis, nephrotic syndrome, and nephrosis. With respect to the top ten causes of death by gender, the number of male deaths in 2023 exceeded female deaths. The top two causes of death for males and females were both malignant neoplasms and heart diseases. Chronic lower respiratory diseases were among the top ten causes of death for men, but not for women. The opposite was true for vascular and unspecified dementia. Table 18 shows the number of deaths and death rates for the top five cancers in 2023.

35. The percentage of men aged 18 and above who smoke decreased from 42.9% in 2004 to 14.0% in 2022, the percentage of men aged 18 and above who consume betel nuts also decreased from 15.8% in 2005 to 6.6% in 2021.
36. By 2024, the number of Taiwanese undergoing various cancer screenings remained steady. Although the number of oral cancer screenings decreased during the COVID-19 pandemic, the screenings have gradually returned to the 2020 level since 2023. The overall standardized incidence rate of oral cancer slowly declined, while the standardized mortality rates showed slight fluctuations.
37. The number of cases and incidence rates (per 100,000 people) of communicable diseases between 2021 and 2023 are shown in Table 19. The incidence rates of diseases such as dengue fever, tuberculosis, syphilis, and gonorrhea differed significantly by gender and exceeded five cases per 100,000 people. In 2023, the gender-specific incidence rates (female/male) were 103.75/125.34 for dengue fever, 17.14/39.55 for tuberculosis, 15.75/70.08 for syphilis, and 7.54/63.90 for gonorrhea. These gender disparities could be attributed to such factors as clinical differences caused by different physiological structures between the sexes, delays in seeking medical care, unsafe sexual behavior, prevalence of chronic diseases, and differences in immune system responses and physiology. The incidence rates of the four aforementioned diseases increased in 2023 compared to 2022.

38. Social security expenditures are government expenditures provided to mitigate the risks or expenses of families or individuals in all stages (for old age, disabilities, surviving dependents, illnesses, health, childbirth, family and children, unemployment, occupational injuries, residences, and others), and to provide or implement healthcare and living standard assurances pursuant to laws. In 2023, social security expenditures reached NT$2.6318 trillion (representing 11.2% of GDP), an increase of 10.6% from 2020.

B. Constitutional, Political and Legal Frameworks of the Reporting Nation

Constitutional, Political and Legal Frameworks

39. The system of government of the Republic of China, according to the Constitution, is led by the President as the nation's Head of State, under whom there are five separate branches of the government with their own functions and responsibilities: the Executive Yuan, Legislative Yuan, Judicial Yuan, Examination Yuan, and Control Yuan.
40. The Executive Yuan is the highest administrative organ of the State. The Executive Yuan has a Premier appointed by the President; and a Vice Premier and seven to nine Ministers without Portfolio which are nominated by the Premier and appointed by the President. The Executive Yuan has an Executive Yuan Council which is chaired by the Premier. It is responsible for determining major policies and proposing statutory or budgetary bills or bills concerning martial law, amnesty, declaration of war, conclusion of peace, or treaties to the Legislative Yuan. The organization of the Executive Yuan includes 14 ministries: the Ministry of the Interior (MOI), Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MOFA), Ministry of National Defense (MOND), Ministry of Finance (MOF), Ministry of Education (MOE), Ministry of Justice (MOJ), Ministry of Economic Affairs (MOEA), Ministry of Transportation and Communications (MOTC), Ministry of Labor (MOL), Ministry of Agriculture (MOA), Ministry of Health and Welfare (MOHW), Ministry of Environment, Ministry of Culture (MOC), and Ministry of Digital Affairs (MODA). It has 10 councils or commissions, including the National Development Council, National Science and Technology Council, Mainland Affairs Council, Financial Supervisory Commission, Ocean Affairs Council, Overseas Chinese Affairs Council, Veterans Affairs Council, Council of Indigenous Peoples, Hakka Affairs Council, and Public Construction Commission. It also encompasses three independent agencies which are equivalent to a second-level central government agency (Central Election Commission, Fair Trade Commission, and National Communications Commission), one bank (the Central Bank of the Republic of China (Taiwan)), one museum (National Palace Museum), and two directorate-generals (Directorate-General of Budget, Accounting, and Statistics and Directorate-General of Personnel Administration).
41. The Legislative Yuan is the country's highest legislature. Members of the Legislative Yuan are legislators elected by the people and they exercise legislative power on behalf of their constituencies. They have the power to resolve proposed bills, budget and audit bills, martial law, amnesty, declaration of war, conclusion of peace, treaties, and other important national matters. Any act, law, statutes, and regulations must be passed by the Legislative Yuan and promulgated by the President before they become the law of the land. Constitutional amendments and alterations of national territory must first be passed by the Legislative Yuan as resolutions before they are put to national referendums in accordance with the provisions of the Additional Articles of the Constitution of The Republic of China. Therefore, based on the nature and function of its authority, the Legislative Yuan is the equivalent of the unicameral parliament of a democracy.
42. The Judicial Yuan has 15 Justices. One Justice serves as the President of the Judicial Yuan and one Justice serves as the Vice President of the Judicial Yuan. The Justices are nominated by the President and approved by the Legislative Yuan. Each Justice of the Judicial Yuan shall serve a term of eight years, independent of the order of appointment to office, and shall not serve consecutive terms. The Justices serving as President and Vice President of the Judicial Yuan shall not enjoy the guarantee of an eight-year term. The current regulations require Justices to exercise their power through the Constitutional Court.
43. An amendment was introduced to the Constitutional Court Interpretation Act on January 4, 2019, and it was renamed the Constitutional Court Procedure Act, which came into effect on January 4, 2022. The Constitutional Court Procedure Act requires Justices to form the Constitutional Court and review the constitutionality of laws and constitutional complaints, disputes between constitutional organs, impeachment of the President and the Vice President, dissolution of unconstitutional political parties, protection of local self-government, and uniform interpretation of statutes and regulations. Under this Act, cases are to be concluded by judgments or rulings of the Constitutional Court.

44. Pursuant to the provisions of the Court Organization Act, there are three levels of courts including the Supreme Court, the High Courts and their branches, and the District Courts and their branches. The courts engage in civil and criminal trials, as well as other legal proceedings required by law. In addition, the courts have jurisdiction over non-contentious cases. Generally, trials are conducted based on the three-level, three-instance system, with the first and second instances being conducted based on matters of fact, and the third instance being conducted as legal review. Cases under the three-level, two-instance system are the exception. On October 3, 1999, the Supreme Court and the High Courts (and their branches) began hearing military appeal cases with sentences handed down by military courts involving at least imprisonment. Since 2013, active-duty military personnel who commit crimes under the Criminal Code of the Armed Forces or their special laws during non-wartime will be tried by ordinary courts.
45. The Administrative Court was also established for administrative litigation cases. The Intellectual Property and Commercial Court was established for litigations and trials involving intellectual property rights. The Juvenile and Family Court was established for litigations and trials involving juvenile and family cases or incidents. The Disciplinary Court was established to handle disciplinary cases of judges, prosecutors, and civil servants.
46. According to Article 80 of the Constitution, judges shall be impartial, and they shall try cases independently in accordance with laws and be free from any interference. Article 81 of the Constitution also stipulates that judges shall hold office for life. No judge shall be removed from office unless he or she has been guilty of a criminal offense or subjected to disciplinary action, or declared to be under interdiction. No judge shall, except in accordance with laws, be suspended or transferred, or have their salary reduced. Article 5 of the Judges Act, promulgated on July 6, 2012, outlines the eligibility for personnel such as Supreme Court, Supreme Administrative Court, Disciplinary Court, High Administrative Court, High Court, and branch court judges, and other judges in courts below said levels. Article 5 of the Judges Act, amended and promulgated on July 17, 2019, added provisions allowing Academia Sinica research fellows, associate research fellows, or assistant research fellows to be appointed as judges serving in High Courts and courts at lower levels. The amendment also allowed Academia Sinica research fellows to be appointed as judges serving in the Supreme Court, Supreme Administrative Court, and Disciplinary Court.
47. The Examination Yuan is the nation's highest examination organ. It has one President, one Vice President, and seven to nine Members with a term of four years. They are nominated by the President and approved and appointed by the Legislative Yuan. The Examination Yuan oversees regulatory matters concerning examinations and civil servants' records and qualification review, protection, compensation, retirement, appointment and dismissal, performance, salary, promotion, and reward. Members of the Examination Yuan shall be above partisanship and shall exercise their functions independently in accordance with the law.
48. The Control Yuan (ombudsman institution) is the nation's highest supervisory authority. It has 29 members, including a President and a Vice President, all of whom are nominated by the R.O.C. (Taiwan) President and appointed to six-year terms upon approval from the Legislative Yuan. The Control Yuan possesses the powers of impeachment, censure, and audit. Members of the Control Yuan shall be above partisanship and exercise their duties independently in accordance with the law.

Political System Indicators

49. The Central Election Commission was established as an independent agency with members that transcend party affiliations and exercise their duties independently according to law as an unbiased and neutral party free of improper influence and interference from political parties. Members of the Commission serve a four-year term, and no political party shall have more than one-third of membership in the Commission. The Commission handles 11 types of elections for public officials, namely elections for the President, Vice President, legislators, special municipal councilors, county/city councilors, township/city council representatives, mountain indigenous district council representatives of special municipalities, special municipal mayors, county/city mayors, township/city mayors, and chiefs of indigenous districts in special municipalities and village/borough chiefs.
50. Candidates for presidency and vice presidency may be recommended by political parties that have met the following criteria: the party eligible for recommending a candidate must have received at least 5% of all valid votes by its candidate for the most recent presidential and vice-presidential election or legislative election. A potential candidate who has not been recommended by a political party may secure his or her candidacy by joint endorsement, whereas the number of joint signers must be at least 1.5% of the total number of electors for the most recent Presidential election.
51. The Legislator election in Taiwan comprises concurrent elections of regional constituent legislators, indigenous legislators, and legislative seats allocated to various political parties based on proportion of votes won: Of the 113 seats in the Legislative Yuan, 73 legislators were elected by regional (special municipal, county, and city) constituents, and 6 legislators were elected by indigenous peoples (3 each for lowland and mountain indigenous group), all of which were voted for as candidates. The 34 legislative seats allocated to various political parties are elected based on the proportion of party votes won in the order of the party-list proportional representation. The regional constituent legislator elections are conducted based on a relative majority single-district voting system, where the candidate with the most votes is elected. The election of lowland and mountain indigenous legislators adopts a single non-transferable voting system in multiple constituencies, and the top three candidates with the most votes are elected. Proportional representation is allocated based on votes won to political parties receiving more than 5% of the total votes, and legislators are elected in the order of the party lists. The number of elected female members on each party's list shall not be less than one half of the total number. To protect the political participation of indigenous peoples, Article 4 of the Additional Articles of the Constitution of the Republic of China prescribes the number of seats that indigenous peoples are entitled to in the election of legislators. Article 16 of the Public Officials Election and Recall Act prescribes that in the election of indigenous public officials, the voters shall be persons of mountain indigenous ancestry who have the right of suffrage and have been living in an electoral district for not less than four consecutive months. According to the above provisions, in the election of indigenous public officials, the voters shall be persons of mountain indigenous ancestry who have the right of suffrage, and can only vote for indigenous legislative candidates. The single-district two-votes system is as shown in Figure 2.

53. A citizen who meets the criteria of an elector shall be automatically included in the official list of voters based on household registration by the household registration authority, and he or she is not required to register as a voter. All public servants in Taiwan are elected by a relative majority in one round of elections and guaranteed quotas are reserved for women for both central and local representatives in accordance with law. The numbers of eligible voters in national elections from 2012 to 2024 are presented in Table 21.

54. In cases where the electoral affairs bodies violate the law in handling elections or recalls, prosecutors, candidates, persons being recalled, or proposers of the recall motion may file a lawsuit in court to invalidate the election. In the event of a dispute over any illegal acts committed by an elected official, the election committee, prosecutors, or candidates in the same electoral district may file a lawsuit with the court to invalidate the election.
55. The allocation of legislators' seats to various political parties over past elections is as follows: Out of the 113 legislators elected to the 9th Legislative Yuan in 2016, the Democratic Progressive Party won 68 seats (60.18%), Kuomintang 35 seats (30.97%), New Power Party five seats (4.42%), People First Party three seats (2.65%), Non-Partisan Solidarity Union one seat (0.88%), and one seat was won by a candidate with no political affiliation (0.88%). Out of the 113 legislators elected to the 10th Legislative Yuan in 2020, the Democratic Progressive Party won 61 seats (53.98%), Kuomintang 38 seats (33.63%), the New Power Party three seats (2.65%), Taiwan Statebuilding Party one seat (0.88%), the Taiwan People's Party five seats (4.42%), and five seats (4.2%) were won by candidates with no political affiliations. Out of the 113 legislators elected to the 11th Legislative Yuan in 2024, Kuomintang won 52 seats (46.02%), the Democratic Progressive Party 51 seats (45.13%), the Taiwan People's Party eight seats (7.08%), and two seats (1.77%) were won by candidates with no political affiliations.
56. The number and gender of elected legislators from 2012 to 2024 are presented in Table 22.

¹⁵ Starting from 2016, gender statistics of presidential, vice presidential, and legislative election voters will be processed by sampling statistical analysis based on the official list of voters.

59. According to the regulations in the Referendum Act amended on January 3, 2018, to submit a proposal for a referendum, the leading proposer shall submit a written proposal, a statement of reasons, and the original roster and copy of the proposer's details to the competent authority. The number of proposers shall be not less than one-ten thousandth of the total electorate in the most recent election of the President and Vice President. The number of joint signers shall not be less than 1.5%. With regard to the result of voting for a proposal of referendum, if valid ballots of assent are more than ballots of dissent and reach 1/4 of eligible voters, the proposal is adopted.
60. From the promulgation of the Referendum Act on December 31, 2003 to 2023, a total of 20 national referendums have been announced as valid for voting. A total of 6 referendums were conducted before 2018 and they were all vetoed because the results were lower than the threshold. The amendment and promulgation of the Referendum Act on January 3, 2018 significantly reduced the thresholds for the proposal, joint signature, and votes required for a referendum to be valid. The joint signature collection for 10 referendums was completed in the same year and 7 referendums were passed in the voting. In 2021, the joint signature collection for 4 referendum cases was completed, but all four failed in the voting.
61. Between 2020 and 2024, there were a total of 28 officially-registered political parties. As of 2024, there were a total of 75 political parties in existence.
62. In the presidential and vice-presidential and legislative elections in 2024, 70 individuals were convicted for election bribery, four individuals were convicted for crimes of violence, and 159 individuals were convicted in other criminal cases. In the elections of special municipal councilors, county/city mayors, county/city councilors, township mayors, and township councilors in 2022, 775 individuals were convicted for election bribery, 31 individuals were convicted for crimes of violence, and 376 individuals were convicted in other criminal cases.
63. Violations of Electoral Regulation: There were 614 cases in the presidential and vice-presidential and legislative elections in 2020; 86 cases in local public official elections in 2022; 138 cases in the presidential and vice-presidential and legislative elections in 2024.
64. Regarding lawsuits filed by candidates to invalidate election results, a total of 13 public official electees were invalidated by court order in 2022.
65. A local referendum must be filed to the special municipal or county/city government. Related items for referendums are prescribed in the Referendum Act and the autonomous regulations of special municipalities and counties/cities. As of 2023, a total of 6 regional referendums have been approved and the turnout in 2008, 2009, 2012, 2016, 2017 and 2021 were: 5.35%, 42.16%, 40.76%, 39.56%, 24.17%, and 43.39%, respectively. Only two proposals were passed. The passage rate was 33.33%.

Crime and Justice Indicators

66. In order to maintain the independence of the judiciary, the independent allocation of budgetary estimates for the judiciary is guaranteed by the Constitution, beginning in 1999. Over the past four years, judicial spending has accounted for 0.96% to 1.13% of total public expenditure. The budgets for Judicial Yuan and subordinates from 2021 to 2024 were NT$24,437,491,000, NT$25,009,889,000, NT$26,242,516,000, and NT$27,459,009,000. The legal budget after the Legislative Yuan's review and reduction of aforementioned budgets amounted to NT$24,193,359,000, NT$24,770,062,000, NT$26,015,848,000, and NT$27,269,273,000. The reduction ratios were 1.00%, 0.96%, 0.86%, and 0.69%.
67. The national crime rate increased from 1,101.31 cases per 100,000 people in 2020 to 1,768.1 cases in 2024. The number of crime suspects rose from 281,811 in 2020 to 300,783 in 2024, and the number of victims increased from 190,198 to 360,556 over the same period. The rate of crimes committed by migrant workers rose from 500.36 cases (per 100,000 people) in 2020 to 986.95 cases in 2024. The number of migrant worker crime suspects rose from 3,462 in 2020 to 5,103 in 2024, and the number of migrant worker victims grew from 1,027 to 2,022 during the same period.

68. The number of homicides occurring between 2021 and 2024 was 212, 174, 123, and 135, respectively. The number of crime suspects decreased from 489 in 2020 to 234 in 2024.
69. From 2021 to 2024, the number of violent crimes or other serious offenses (e.g., homicide, robbery, assault, and smuggling) for which suspects were arrested, tried, convicted, sentenced, and imprisoned per 100,000 people annually was 598, 499, 442, and 378, respectively. The corresponding incidence rates (cases per 100,000 people) annually were 2.55, 2.14, 1.89, and 1.61, respectively, indicating a downward trend. The total number of such crime suspects also declined from 1,195 in 2020 to 600 in 2024.
70. Conviction rates for serious violent crimes: With regard to homicide, robbery, kidnapping, and forced sexual intercourse from 2021 to 2024, conviction rates for homicide (not including death by negligence) were 92.8%, 92.5%, 95%, and 94.4%, respectively; conviction rates for robbery were 95.1%, 95.2%, 91.3%, and 95.1%, respectively; conviction rates for kidnapping were 72.7%, 73.3%, 100%, and 71.4%, respectively; and conviction rates for forced sexual intercourse were 84.4%, 86.2%, 85.5%, and 86.8%, respectively.
71. The number of forcible rape cases that occurred between 2021 and 2024 was 81, 67, 83, and 65, respectively.
72. Pursuant to the Crime Victim Rights Protection Act, surviving family members of deceased victims, seriously injured victims of criminal acts, and victims of sexual assault crimes shall be entitled to apply for crime victim compensation. Between 2021 and 2024, the number of compensation cases approved totaled 3,796, and the number of persons compensated was 5,397 (including 1,721 males and 3,676 females). The total compensation amounted to NT$2,432,970,000 during this period (NT$891,030,000 for males and NT$1,541,940,000 for females). Table 28 shows statistics on applications and decisions for crime victim compensation between 2021 and 2024.

81. No capital punishment was carried out between 2006 and 2009, whereas four people were executed in 2010, five in 2011, six in 2012, six in 2013, five in 2014, six in 2015, one in 2016, zero in 2017, one in 2018, zero in 2019, one in 2020, and zero from 2021 to 2024.

Media Coverage

82. Given that radio frequencies are a resource shared by all citizens, the government plans and manages the use of frequency resources for digital communications based on the principles of necessity and of ensuring harmonious and effective use to facilitate convenience and serve public interests. Regarding the frequencies required by radio or television stations, the MODA and the National Communications Commission jointly evaluate matters such as radio or TV station licensing and frequency usage.
83. On April 16, 2015, the Enforcement Rules of the Radio and Television Act were amended to remove Article 29, which prescribed the need to obtain a certificate of approval before prior to airing a program. The Radio and Television Act was further amended on January 6, 2016, removing several outdated restrictions such as Article 21 pertaining to the prohibition of content that undermines the dignity of the nation, and Article 33, which required advertisements to be reviewed prior to broadcasting.
84. To ensure people's access to basic telecommunications services at reasonable and affordable prices, Taiwan has established a mechanism to make telecommunications broadband infrastructure available in remote areas. Through the operation mechanism of the Telecommunications Universal Service Fund, we ensure that people in remote areas can access indispensable basic telecommunications services of good quality to promote digital equity.

Nongovernmental Organizations

85. The organization and activities of the R.O.C.'s civil associations are governed by the Civil Associations Act. Each civil association is classified, based on its attributes, as a social association, occupational association, or political association (including political party). Due to the nature of the three types of organizations, three laws, including the Political Parties Act, Social Associations Act, and Occupational Associations Act were envisioned as the basis for supporting the development of civil associations. Before the promulgation of the Political Parties Act on December 6, 2017, political parties were established through a registration-based system while political associations were established through a permission-based system. After the promulgation, all associations created in accordance with Article 3 of the Act are referred to as political parties and are established through a registration-based system. According to the current Civil Associations Act, an approval system is adopted for the establishment of civil associations. The establishment procedures are mainly as follows: (1) To apply for the establishment of a civil association, the initiators shall prepare the required documents for the application process. (2) An initiators and preparatory meeting shall be convened, and an establishment conference shall be held. (3) Upon approval of registration, the association will be issued an accreditation certificate by the regulating authority. (4) To apply for the status of a civil association through registration (the association may apply directly to a district court as required). Except as otherwise provided by other laws and regulations, foreigners holding a valid alien residence certificate may serve as the initiator of a civil association. As for membership qualifications, no restrictions are imposed in the relevant regulations of civil associations. Civil associations shall follow the principle of autonomy as prescribed in their constitutions. As of 2024, the R.O.C. had 68,576 various social associations (24,985 were national and 43,591 were local); 5,344 commercial and freelancers associations (of which, based on regional classification, 383 were national and 4,961 were local; based on organizational type, 184 were industrial associations, 2,427 were commercial associations, and 2,733 were freelancers associations). International non-governmental organizations (INGO) are required to apply for registration in Taiwan by submitting the necessary documents in accordance with the Directions for Application for Establishment of International Non-governmental Organizations, or the Directions for Foreign Civil Institutions and Organizations to Apply to Set up and Register Offices in the Republic of China (Taiwan). By 2024, a total of 123 INGOs were approved for registration (including 37 international civil organizations and 86 international offices). Prior to the promulgation and implementation of the Political Parties Act, there were a total of 59 political associations operating at the national level. Please refer to Note 61 of this report for the number of political parties.

86. Out of respect for people's freedom of association, the government has been constantly revising the civil association laws to allow greater freedom of association. Under the latest regulations, the government no longer intervenes but instead provides counsel to civil associations. The requirement of a permit in the draft Social Associations Act has since been removed, and those who wish to associate may simply register with a government authority. Before the amendment of the laws, matters that were originally required to be reported to the competent authority for approval, such as changes in the office address, the use of the official seal, the method of electing member representatives, the budget report and financial statement, changes in elected personnel, and the method of electing directors and supervisors by postal voting, were changed to filing for record. In addition, current regulations require initiators of civil associations to be adults without related negative qualifications. The legislative intent is to ensure that the person in charge, elected staff, and members bear responsibilities for legal actions in association (business) affairs. However, to expand people's rights to diverse participation and protect the freedom of association, the draft of the Social Associations Act was delivered to the Legislative Yuan for deliberation in 2017. As the term of the legislators expired and due to the non-carryover principle for unpassed bills, the draft was re-forwarded to the Executive Yuan for deliberation. Related regulations on whether members, directors, and supervisors of associations have the capacity to carry out juridical acts have been rescinded and the government fully respects the self-governance of associations and results of related elections. These measures will prove to be more favorable for people's freedom of association and the development of civil associations.

D. Legal Framework to Protect Human Rights Protection at National Level

The Constitution²²

88. Chapter 2 of the Constitution prescribes the rights and duties of the people. Articles 7 to 24 specify the fundamental human rights such as equality; personal freedom; freedom of residence and change of residence; freedom of speech, teaching, writing, and publication; freedom of privacy of correspondence; freedom of religious belief; freedom of assembly and association; the right to existence; the right to work; the right to property; the right to present petitions, lodge complaints, and institute legal proceedings; the rights to election, recall, initiative, and referendum; the right to take public examinations and hold public offices; the right to and the duty of receiving compulsory education; other freedoms and rights; and the right to claim damages from the State.
89. In Chapter 13 (Fundamental National Policies of the Constitution) of the Constitution, Articles 142 to 151 outline fundamental economic principles that concern human rights, such as land policies, operation of monopolistic state-owned enterprises, control and support of private capital, agricultural development, balance in local economic development, trade in goods, management of financial institutions, financial institutions for the masses, and economic development involving overseas compatriots. Articles 152 to 157 outline fundamental human rights such as employment, protection of laborers and farmers, employer-employee relations, social insurance and social aid, women's and children's welfare policies, and promotion of sanitation and health protection services. Articles 158 to 167 outline fundamental human rights with regards to education and cultural development, equal education opportunities, primary and supplemental education, establishment of scholarships, supervision of educational/cultural authorities, promotion of educational/cultural businesses, assurance of educational/cultural budgets and funding, assurance for educational/cultural workers, incentives for scientific inventions and creations, protection of cultural heritage, and subsidization of educational/cultural businesses. Articles 168 to 169 outline fundamental human rights for frontier tribes and support to frontier businesses.
90. In accordance with the Enforcement Act of CEDAW, when the rights and gender-related human rights protected under CEDAW fall within the mandates of government agencies at all levels, each respective agency bears the obligation and authority to safeguard and realize human rights within the scope of its functions. The Department of Gender Equality of the Executive Yuan is the competent authority responsible for promoting gender equality and the implementation of CEDAW. The Executive Yuan and its subordinate ministries and commissions are responsible for promoting national policies and human rights protection. The MOJ is the competent authority for promoting the two covenants and is responsible for criminal investigation and prosecution, promoting clean government, and safeguarding human rights. The MOI is responsible for citizen participation in politics, freedom of assembly and association, religious freedom, human rights of new immigrants, housing justice, and freedom of movement, as well as the competent authority for promoting ICERD. The MOFA is responsible for foreign affairs and promoting international cooperation. The MOE is responsible for people's right to education. The MOC is responsible for promoting cultural rights. The MOHW is responsible for promoting national health, social welfare, and assistance, as well as serving as the competent authority for promoting the CRPD and the CRC. The MOL is responsible for promoting labor human rights. The Ministry of Environment is responsible for promoting environmental rights.
91. The Legislative Yuan is responsible for the deliberation, acceptance, and approval of international treaties and conventions when states act as the parties. It may deliberate on related proposed human rights acts, supervise applicable implementation by administrative departments, and accept petitions or lobbying from the general public to fulfill its functions. It may also hold public hearings, question government administrative officials, and retrieve related documents in order to assist with the aforementioned functions. Executive decrees issued or established by any government agency according to its legislative power must be submitted to the Legislative Yuan for record and reference. Should the Legislative Yuan determine that a decree contravenes, alters, or violates any law, or that a decree has regulated certain matters that should have been stipulated by law, it may, upon the resolution of the legislature, request the initiating government agency to revise or revoke the decree within two months. Should the government agency fail to do so, the decree shall be voided.

92. Human rights protected by the Constitution and various laws are consolidated through all kinds of courts. The Judicial Yuan funded the establishment of the Legal Aid Foundation pursuant to the Legal Aid Act. Refer to Note 141 of this report for the implementation status.
93. The Examination Yuan shall take charge of matters concerning examinations, as well as the qualification screening, security of tenure, pecuniary aid in case of death, retirement, employment and discharge, service rating, scale of salaries, promotion and transfer, and commendation and award of civil servants.
94. The Control Yuan may, after investigation, file an impeachment or censure against central and local government officials for serious violations of law or dereliction of duty, or file corrective measures for improvements to the Executive Yuan and its ministries and agencies if there are deficiencies in their work or facilities. Therefore, if the actions or inactions of government agencies at all levels and by civil servants involve human rights violations, the Control Yuan may correct them through the exercise of its powers and follow up on the investigation cases. The Control Yuan is the constitutional institution that protects human rights by exercising its supervisory powers.

Human Rights Conventions Incorporated into Domestic Legislation

95. Of the nine core United Nations human rights conventions, the ICERD remains binding on the R.O.C., as the country completed the procedures for depositing the instrument of ratification before it withdrew from the United Nations. Five others, including ICCPR, ICESCR, CEDAW, CRC, and CRPD, have been incorporated into domestic law through the enactment of implementation acts. The aforementioned conventions that have entered into force do not contain reservation clauses. In addition to the enactment of implementation acts, the incorporation of conventions into domestic law can also be completed through Article 11 of the Conclusion of Treaties Act. The validity and practice of these two measures are the same and the method of adoption is determined by the competent authorities for each human rights convention. Although use of the Conclusion of Treaties Act can reduce the administrative cost to the government, civil society groups generally hope that the government can enact implementation acts. To meet the expectations of civil society groups, Taiwan enacted the General Operating Regulations for the Drafting of the National Human Rights Report and Organization of International Review Meetings for Core Human Rights Conventions. It specifies that national reports, international reviews, and implementation of Concluding Observations and Recommendations must be completed for the human rights conventions incorporated into domestic law in accordance with the requirements therein and the procedural requirements of the General Operating Regulations. Progress on the other three human rights conventions that have not yet been incorporated into domestic law is as follows:

- (1) International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance (ICPPED): The MOJ submitted a proposal for the ICPPED to the Executive Yuan on October 31, 2023, and forwarded it to the Legislative Yuan for review. On December 11, 2023, and January 10, 2024, the MOJ invited scholars, experts, and various agencies to jointly discuss and verify the traditional Chinese version of the convention and whether there are any reservation clauses. The Executive Yuan held two review meetings on November 27, 2023, and January 29, 2024, and the proposal was passed at the 3,893rd session on February 22, 2024, and sent to the Legislative Yuan for deliberation on the same day. On March 1, 2024, the Legislative Yuan forwarded the proposal to the Foreign Affairs and National Defense Committee and the Judiciary and Organic Laws and Statutes Committee for review.

- (2) CAT: The Act to Implement the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment drafted by the MOI was reviewed by the Executive Yuan at a meeting held in February 2024, and will be submitted to the Legislative Yuan for deliberation.
- (3) ICMW: A proposal to join the convention was submitted to the Executive Yuan on July 5, 2021. On August 11, 2021, the Executive Yuan held a pre-meeting discussion on reservation clauses and the declaration of interpretation to clarify disputed points. The MOL continued to review the relevant laws and administrative measures in conjunction with relevant ministries and commissions and subsequently sent a written request to the Executive Yuan on June 27, 2022, for the accession process to the Convention to be reviewed. The Executive Yuan held meetings to discuss the issue on August 22, 2022, and February 22, 2024. As the convention covers a broad scope and needs to be comprehensively considered in response to social changes and industry needs, the MOL proposed to withdraw it on May 29, 2024, and the Executive Yuan agreed to the withdrawal on June 17, 2024. The MOL will compile opinions of relevant ministries and commissions and submit a second report. In addition, regarding the drafting of implementation acts of this convention proposed by legislators, the MOL will adopt the provisions of the Conclusion of Treaties Act, taking into consideration the process for incorporating conventions into domestic law and following the instructions of the Meeting to Study the Schedule for Incorporating the Nine Core United Nations Human Rights Conventions in Domestic Law held by the Presidential Office Human Rights Consultative Committee on December 23, 2016. Furthermore, taking into consideration the reservation clauses in this convention regarding the issue of migrant workers being able to freely change jobs, the MOL has commissioned experts and scholars to conduct research on related international practices, as well as their feasibility and impact. Going forward, the MOL will further discuss the bill with the Legislative Yuan, provide reports in a timely manner on the progress of incorporating this convention in domestic law, and submit this convention to the Executive Yuan for review as soon as possible.

96. After the incorporation of international conventions into domestic law, they become law, carrying the same validity as all other laws of the R.O.C. (Taiwan). The applicability of a particular law in a specific case shall be decided by the judge, who shall consider the regulatory purpose, object, historical background, and appropriateness for achieving justice in determining whether legislation should be applied to a specific case. See Note 104 of this report for the number of cases in which CEDAW was cited.

Domestic Laws that Protect Rights Enshrined in the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women

97. The Sexual Assault Crime Prevention Act and the Domestic Violence Prevention Act protect the rights of victims of sexual assault and domestic violence. Furthermore, the Stalking and Harassment Prevention Act has served to protect victims' rights with respect to stalking and harassment. In addition, the Gender Equity Education Act and Gender Equality in Employment Act protect gender equality rights.

For other related regulations regarding the protection of the people's cultural rights, see Note 298 of the third national report on the ICESCR.

Domestic Laws that Protect Rights Enshrined in the Convention on the Rights of the Child

100. The Protection of Children and Youths Welfare and Rights Act, the Child and Youth Sexual Exploitation Prevention Act, and the Juvenile Justice Act are enacted to protect the rights of children and teenagers.
101. In order to prevent children and minors from being exposed to internet content that is harmful to their physical or psychological development, the National Communications Commission, in accordance with Article 46 of the Protection of Children and Youths Welfare and Rights Act, and in conjunction with the MOI, the MOC, the MOE, the MODA, and the MOHW, commissioned civil society groups to establish the Institute of Watch Internet Network (iWIN). One of iWIN's primary duties is to handle complaints involving violations of the Protection of Children and Youths Welfare and Rights Act and other instances of harmful online content. Complaints are then forwarded to the competent authorities for further processing.

Domestic Laws that Protect Rights Enshrined in the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities

102. The People with Disabilities Rights Protection Act and the Mental Health Act protect the physical and mental health of people with disabilities and people suffering from mental illnesses.

Domestic Laws that Protect Rights Enshrined in The International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination

103. The Genocide Act and the Immigration Act protect the human rights of victims of racial discrimination.

Judicial Citations of CEDAW and Remedies for Rights Violations

104. The Judicial Yuan compiled a list of court judgments and Judicial Yuan interpretations citing CEDAW, which can be found in the human rights section of the Judicial Yuan's website. The list is a useful reference for judges and also serves to inform academics, experts, and the general public.

105. After the incorporation of international conventions into domestic regulations, they become laws and their validity shall be the same as other laws of the R.O.C. The rights enshrined in the covenants are also items protected by the tortious acts in Article 184 to Article 198 of the Civil Code. Where such rights are damaged by illegal acts, the individual may file for remedies in accordance with the aforementioned regulations.
106. When human rights conventions incorporated into domestic law are applied in a court ruling, yet one or more of the parties believe that the court failed to take the convention into account, the party may appeal to an upper-instance court. Refer to Note 44 of this report for remedies through appellate review.

E. Legal Framework that Advances Human Rights at National Level

107. To establish a national human rights institution that complies with the provisions of the Paris Principles, the Control Yuan drafted the Organic Act of the Control Yuan National Human Rights Commission, which was promulgated on January 8, 2020 and took effect on May 1 of the same year. On August 1, 2020, the National Human Rights Commission officially began operating. Its functions are to investigate human rights violations, submit suggestions or reports to government agencies, assist in promoting the incorporation of major international human rights instruments into domestic laws, publish thematic reports on major human rights issues or annual reports on the state of human rights in the nation, provide independent opinions for national reports submitted by the government, monitor the effectiveness of government agencies in promoting human rights education, and facilitate cooperation with domestic and international human rights organizations.
108. Once any international human rights convention is incorporated into domestic law, it becomes part of Taiwan's laws, and the Control Yuan can review whether the actions of government agencies comply with the international human rights norms outlined in the convention. In practice, the Control Yuan may investigate individual cases where the public complains about the government violating human rights or systemic/institutional human rights violations. Within its authority, the Control Yuan may handle and follow up on the cases based on the findings of investigations until they are improved. In accordance with the provisions of the enforcement acts of various human rights conventions and based on the needs of the operation of its functions and powers, the Control Yuan continues to conduct seminars and training programs on human rights conventions. When necessary, it may invite scholars, experts, and representatives of government departments and non-governmental organizations to hold seminars or special consultations on human rights issues of public concern.
109. The Presidential Office Human Rights Consultative Committee was set up in 2010 with 15 to 21 members. The members appointed by the President were representatives from government agencies, scholars, experts, and representatives from civil society groups. The budget was appropriated by the Presidential Office and related ministries and councils under the Executive Yuan. Its tasks included to promote and provide consultation on human rights policies, to investigate international human rights systems and legislations, to deliberate on international exchange affairs on human rights, to advise the President on other matters relating to human rights, to produce national human rights reports in accordance with regulations in human rights conventions of the United Nations, to organize plans for international review meetings, to provide consultative opinions, and to supervise the implementation of Concluding Observations and Recommendations. The Committee, however, is only consultative in nature and does not have the power to accept and handle complaints, investigations, and deliberations associated with human right infringement cases. The Committee completed its intended tasks and ceased operations on May 19, 2020, having held a total of 39 committee meetings.
110. The Executive Yuan established a human rights protection and promotion task force in 2001 that comprises 21 to 27 members. The convener and deputy convener positions are currently held by a Minister without Portfolio and the Deputy Minister of Justice, respectively, with various ministry heads, scholars, and experts as members. The task force's duties include investigating human rights systems in other countries and international human rights regulations; promoting collaboration and exchange with international human rights organizations; prescribing and promoting the establishment of national agencies and organizations on human rights; discussing human rights protection policies, laws, and regulations; negotiating and promoting human rights protective measures; deliberating on human rights education policies; communicating the idea of human rights protection; and setting up a human rights mail box to serve as a platform for the general public to provide advice and file petitions.

To consolidate gender equality, protect the rights of indigenous peoples and new immigrants, revive Hakka culture, and organize activities relating to the human rights of children, teenagers, and persons with disabilities, the Executive Yuan has established the Gender Equality Committee (GEC), Council of Indigenous Peoples, Coordination Meeting on Immigration Affairs, Hakka Affairs Council, EY Children's Rights Task Force, and Committee for the Promotion of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. They are in charge of directing and supervising related operations carried out by government agencies at all levels. To promote the Executive Yuan's gender equality policy program and specific action measures, the Council of Indigenous Peoples has implemented a gender equality policy program implementation plan. It has also established a gender equality task force to incorporate gender perspectives into the formulation of various policies, laws, plans, and programs of the Council so as to facilitate the achievement of substantive gender equality.

111. To promote horizontal communication across various government agencies and strengthen the overall effectiveness of the government's enforcement of women's rights and interests, the Executive Yuan established the Committee of Women's Rights Promotion in 1997, incorporating initiatives from representatives of women's organizations, scholars, and experts into the country's highest decision-making mechanisms. By combining wide-ranging professional backgrounds and knowledge, as well as the power of the government and the people, the Executive Yuan maximized policy planning, consultation, supervision, and resource integration functions to promote women's rights. To strengthen Taiwan's promotion of gender equality and respond to increasing international attention regarding gender equality issues, the Executive Yuan established the Department of Gender Equality in 2012 as the nation's first authoritative unit dedicated to gender equality. The Committee of Women's Rights Promotion was expanded, becoming the GEC, which is staffed by the Department of Gender Equality. The GEC helps integrate gender equality policies across various government bodies, directing central and local governments on how to promote CEDAW, gender equality policy guidelines, and gender mainstreaming. Such work allows the government to implement gender equality and adopt different gender perspectives, while incorporating the advice of experts and scholars into the nation's highest decision-making authority. This ensures the reasonable and fair protection of women's rights in Taiwan through government legislation and policy implementation, thereby effectively promoting women's rights. Of the GEC's 35 current members, 18 are women (accounting for 51.4 percent). The GEC is funded by the Executive Yuan. To ensure sound operations and improve the efficiency of committee proceedings, a meeting handbook was introduced to specify its mission, list its members, and provide guidelines for self-policing and avoiding conflicts of interest. A three-level meeting framework was also adopted and, in principle, the GEC meets once every four months. The chair of the GEC is the Premier, who is responsible for convening and presiding over meetings, as well as inviting all GEC members (including government officials and members of the public) and representatives from relevant ministries to attend. Government members of the GEC are the heads of ministerial-level agencies. This facilitates interagency coordination and ensures that policies are carried out efficiently and consistently. Between 2021 and 2024, the GEC actively promoted numerous gender equality policies and measures and identified important gender equality issues, including making publicly available the fourth report on the implementation of CEDAW, the implementation status of the Gender Equality Policy Guidelines, the results of gender mainstreaming policy, and international exchange strategies and accomplishments. It also conducted discussions on issues such as publicly available childcare, female labor force participation rates, flexible working hours, same-sex marriage, and online gender-based violence. The GEC facilitates the implementation of gender equality policies and provides oversight on the enforcement of such policies by ministerial-level government agencies.
112. Pursuant to Article 3 of the Operating Principles of Human Rights Working Groups of the Executive Yuan's Second-level Agencies, 18 ministries and commissions, including the MOI , MOFA , MOND , MOF , MOE , MOL , MOJ , MOHW , Ministry of Environment, Ocean Affairs Council, Council of Indigenous Peoples, MOEA , MOC , MOA , MODA , MOTC , National Communications Commission, and Financial Supervisory Commission established a human rights task force, respectively, which holds regular meetings to discuss human rights issues. Among these, the task forces of the Ocean Affairs Council, MOEA, MOA, MODA, MOTC, National Communications Commission, and Financial Supervisory Commission were established between 2020 and 2024. Each agency's website has added a human rights section to ensure open and transparent disclosure of information.

113. The Executive Yuan established the Department of Human Rights and Transitional Justice on June 27, 2022, which is responsible for supervising, integrating, and coordinating cross-convention and cross-agency human rights affairs. Its purview includes the planning, deliberation, review, research and development, and supervision of human rights protection and transitional justice policies, plans, and laws; research on international human rights and transitional justice regulations; promotion of cooperation and exchanges with relevant domestic and foreign organizations; integrated planning and promotion of human rights indicators, human rights budgets, and human rights impact assessment mechanisms; and integrated planning and supervision of international human rights conventions, national human rights reports, and human rights education. In addition, to address national transitional justice affairs after the dissolution of the Transitional Justice Commission in May 2022, the Executive Yuan established the Transitional Justice Board to take charge of the integration, coordination and supervision of matters and task summary reports stipulated in the Act on Promoting Transitional Justice for continuously promoting transitional justice policies. Furthermore, the Premier of the Executive Yuan serves as the convener of the board.
114. National Human Rights Action Plan Established by Taiwan
 - (1) National Human Rights Action Plan: To formulate a comprehensive human rights policy and improve human rights protection, Taiwan promulgated its first National Human Rights Action Plan on May 5, 2022, incorporating eight priority issues , namely strengthening of human rights protection, human rights education, equality and non-discrimination, strengthening of protections of the right to life, housing justice, climate change and human rights, digital human rights, and refugee rights and protection. A total of 154 actions along with key performance indicators, and timeframes for implementation have since been formulated to ensure that government resources are appropriately allocated and utilized for human rights protection and that related policies are implemented steadily in phases.
 - (2) National Action Plan on Business and Human Rights: In 2020, Taiwan promulgated the National Action Plan on Business and Human Rights in accordance with the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights (UNGPs), proposing 33 action items to strengthen the protection of human rights in enterprises. It mainly covers three main principles, namely the state duty to protect human rights, the corporate responsibility to respect human rights, and access to remedy. The plan is updated and reviewed every four years. The version 1.0 expired on December 10, 2024, and the updated National Action Plan on Business and Human Rights version 2.0 will be proposed. A number of workshops and stakeholder communication meetings have been held to incorporate the opinions of various stakeholder groups in formulating actions for version 2.0. After the content is confirmed, it will be submitted to the Executive Yuan for approval and promulgation.
 - (3) Action Plan for Fisheries and Human Rights: To comprehensively improve the rights and benefits of migrant fishers and enhance the image of Taiwan and the industry, the Executive Yuan approved the Action Plan for Fisheries and Human Rights on May 20, 2022. The action plan works to enforce seven major strategies, namely full implementation of agreed labor conditions, improvement on living conditions and social protection, strengthening management of recruitment agents, increasing monitoring and control capacity, strengthening management of FOC-vessels, establishing and strengthening international cooperation, and enhancing collaboration between the public and private sectors. Furthermore, cross-departmental cooperation promotes specific actions to protect the rights and benefits of migrant fishers through comprehensive and systematic measures. In addition, the plan was also amended on July 25, 2023, to further improve communications and safety onboard and enhance the human rights of migrant fishers

115. To assist agencies in incorporating international human rights conventions into various government policies and to strengthen the substantive participation of stakeholders such as affected groups in the drafting process, a human rights impact assessment mechanism for bills and medium- and long-term individual projects was set to be established by the end of 2024. After the mechanism is implemented on July 1, 2025, all bills and medium- and long-term individual projects drafted by agencies under the Executive Yuan shall be subject to human rights impact assessments before being submitted to the Executive Yuan for review (deliberation).
116. The Establishment Guidelines for the Legislative Yuan Task Force on Gender Equality were formulated in 2012, and the Legislative Yuan Task Force on Gender Equality was founded based on Article 1 of the guidelines. The Legislative Yuan GEC was founded in 2016 and is chaired by the president of the Legislative Yuan. Of the 13 current members, seven are women (accounting for 53.9 percent).
117. The Judicial Yuan Human Rights and Gender Equality Commission was established in 2012 and is chaired by the secretary general. In October 2017, in order to response to the resolution of the Preparatory Committee for the National Conference on Judicial Reform, and to improve children's rights and the protection thereof, published establishment Guidelines for the Judicial Yuan Human Rights and Child Protection and Gender Friendly Committee. The Judicial Yuan Human Rights and Gender Equality Commission were reorganize into the Judicial Yuan Human Rights and Child Protection and Gender Friendly Committee. To declare its commitment to promoting human rights, children's rights, and gender equality, the Judicial Yuan revised the guidelines in November 2019, and established the president of the Judicial Yuan as the committee's chair. The number of committee members also increased from 17 to a flexible range of 19 to 23. An educational training team was also established to oversee gender equality educational training at the Judicial Yuan. Of the 21 current members, 12 are women (accounting for 57 percent).
118. In 2011, the Examination Yuan established its human rights task force, with the vice president of the Examination Yuan as the convener. Members of the task force include the secretary general of the Examination Yuan, heads of affiliate ministries and departments, scholars, and experts, who are charged with examining the human rights protection efforts of their respective departments, regularly submitting reports at Examination Yuan meetings, and providing instructions for improvement to the relevant departments. In 2012, the Examination Yuan established the National Examinations GEC, with the president as the chair and the vice president as the vice chair. The committee is comprised of three members of the Examination Yuan, the secretary general of the Examination Yuan, heads of affiliate ministries and departments, scholars, and experts. The committee is responsible for encouraging the Examination Yuan and its affiliate ministries and departments to establish gender equality mechanisms, develop gender equality implementation plans, bolster gender awareness and training, collect and conduct gender-based statistical analyses, organize assessments of gender-based impacts on legal cases, appropriate a gender-related budget, and create a gender equality section on their websites. The aforementioned task force currently has 12 members, five of whom are women (accounting for 41.7 percent). The National Examinations GEC currently has 15 members, eight of whom are women (accounting for 53.3 percent).

119. In 2024, the Executive Yuan and its subordinate ministries and agencies allocated NT$92.17 billion for gender-responsive budgeting, with actual expenditures amounting to NT$90.22 billion, reflecting an execution rate of 97.89% (from the general government budget). Major initiatives included the National Plan for Responding to Low Fertility—Education and Care for Children Aged 2 to Under 6; the Subsidy Program Providing a 60% Tuition and Fee Reduction for Students from Special Circumstance Families Attending Private Universities and Colleges; the Promoting Gender Equity Education—Prevention of Sexual Assault, Sexual Harassment, and Bullying on Campus program; and the Program for Strengthening Social and Family Education.

Training and Advocacy on Gender Equality and Human Rights Instruments

120. To enhance various educational and advocacy resources on CEDAW, the Executive Yuan GEC established a CEDAW section on its website, which contains Chinese and English versions of CEDAW and its general recommendations; national reports; concluding observations and recommendations to enforce CEDAW; case studies of regulatory revisions; guidelines and case studies the general public can use to cite CEDAW to administrative agencies; and various training materials. In addition, short promotional films, broadcast videos, posters, digital learning programs, and educational materials have been produced to raise gender equality awareness among the general public. The GEC also established a gender diversity section on its website in 2019.
121. Gender Equality Educational Materials Produced by Individual Government Ministries and Agencies in 2024
- (1) The MOHW produced an information kit on protecting the rights and interests of victims of nonconsensual sexual imagery. Presented in an easy-to-read, illustrated format, the kit is divided into six sections corresponding to different sectors—social affairs, police, prosecution, courts, education, and media—to enhance public understanding of the rights and protections available to victims of sexual imagery violations.
 - (2) The MOEA published Practices for Promoting Gender Equality in Taiwan’s Energy Sector Through an Exploration of International Experiences. By referencing international cases of gender-equality initiatives in the energy sector and examining the concerns raised in international human rights conventions and frameworks, the publication analyzes approaches for integrating gender perspectives into Taiwan’s energy policies, programs, and operations.
 - (3) The MOJ published Human Rights Detective: A Compendium of Stories on the Two Covenants III. This collection compiles human rights-themed case stories and analyses, including multiple narratives centered on gender equality. Through relatable, everyday scenarios and accessible language, the publication helps readers grasp the human rights values embodied in the provisions of two international covenants (the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights) and the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW).
122. To strengthen CEDAW-related education and training, the government issued the Great Leap for Gender Equality—CEDAW Implementation Program; the CEDAW Educational Training and Evaluation Program; and the Regulatory Revision Program for General Recommendations Under CEDAW No. 29 to No. 33 in 2012, 2015, and 2016, respectively. The Regulatory Revision Program for General Recommendations Under CEDAW No. 34 to No. 37 and the CEDAW Education Training and Advocacy Program were issued in 2020; and the Gender Equality Training Plan for All

Government Agencies was issued in 2023. These efforts aim to enhance gender sensitivity among government personnel and expand the scope of gender equality training (including implementing agencies and target groups). They also seek to strengthen attention to the rights and interests of disadvantaged groups; uphold and protect the rights of individuals of different genders, sexual orientations, and gender identities; and integrate gender perspectives into government policies. Details of training outcomes can be found in Articles 2 and 5 of the Convention-specific Document.

123. Achievements in Gender Equality Capacity Building in 2024
 - (1) Maintenance and operation of the Gender Awareness and Empowerment Resource Integration Platform: To support government agencies in designing appropriate training programs and to provide a platform for civil servants' self-directed learning, the Executive Yuan has established the Gender Awareness and Empowerment Resource Integration Platform. This platform consolidates gender mainstreaming training information and resources from the Executive Yuan, its ministries and agencies, and local governments. Featuring sections such as Course Planning and Learning Hub, it offers materials for training organizers and resources for civil servants' independent study. Information on gender equality courses conducted by central and local governments in 2024, as well as self-produced gender equality teaching materials, has been compiled and updated on the Executive Yuan's GEC website to support diversified learning and reference and use by government agencies.
 - (2) Implementation of advanced courses and development of learning materials: In 2024, the Executive Yuan developed three digital learning modules on gender and space, understanding the three laws on sexual harassment prevention, and public-private partnerships for advancing gender equality. These resources have been uploaded to the Directorate-General of Personnel Administration's e-Learning for Civil Servants platform to facilitate online learning and deepen gender equality awareness among public employees. Additionally, two advanced gender mainstreaming courses—entitled “The Past, Present, and Future of Same-Sex Marriage Laws: With a Discussion on the Artificial Reproduction Act”; and “Gender, Family, and the Law: Gender Issues in Marriage and Family”—were conducted to further strengthen gender equality awareness among Executive Yuan staff, with 109 participants in total.
124. To strengthen gender mainstreaming advocacy at government agencies and help government officials develop gender sensitivity, the Executive Yuan implemented the Gender Mainstreaming Training Program in 2018, requiring all agencies under the Executive Yuan, as well as special municipality, county, and city governments, to provide their staff with at least two hours of training on gender mainstreaming each year. Staff responsible for administering gender-equality affairs are required to undergo a minimum of six hours of advanced training. The scope of the training program has been expanded to include politically appointed officials and civil servants. A gender equality training evaluation incentive program was established to encourage central government agencies and local governments to implement and improve relevant training. The training participation rates at most government agencies have exceeded 80 percent. The Executive Yuan also established the Gender Awareness and Empowerment Resource Integration Platform to integrate the training resources of various agencies for reference and self-study. For details on gender mainstreaming advocacy, see Article 3 of the convention specific document.
125. Due to international political circumstances that prevent Taiwan from joining the UN, related documents on human rights are forwarded to overseas missions and submitted to local government officials and people friendly to Taiwan to raise awareness about Taiwan's human rights advances. Included in the responsibilities of Taiwan's overseas missions are the promotion of democracy, freedom, and human rights to showcase Taiwan's implementation of basic human rights protection and adherence to UN human rights conventions, as well as to promote human rights diplomacy.

126. In line with operational needs and global developments, human rights education for diplomatic personnel covers not only fundamental information about human rights—including the three gender equality laws, gender diversity, human trafficking prevention, new immigrant policies, and sexual harassment prevention—but also professional training on the relationship between international human rights conventions and diplomatic work, leveraging human rights issues to expand international participation, and assisting overseas missions in handling gender-based cases of violence. These training programs cover all personnel, including new recruits, in-service personnel, overseas assignees, transferred staff, and mid- to senior-level management.
127. To enhance human rights awareness and implement human rights education, since 2017, human rights education has been incorporated into the mandatory annual courses on democratic governance values provided to all civil servants, and courses on international human rights conventions have been included as part of policy-oriented training conducted by government agencies. In addition, statutory training programs such as foundational training for newly appointed civil servants, promotion-related training, and senior civil service training cover human rights, international human rights conventions, and gender mainstreaming. Through the design of teaching materials, provision of practical case studies, and use of interactive teaching methods such as classroom discussions, case analyses, and group Q&A sessions, these programs aim to deepen civil servants' understanding and appreciation of human rights issues.
128. Human rights concepts have been incorporated into the national examination for judges and prosecutors, as well as the Bar Examination for lawyers. Human rights education has also been listed as a key component of pre-service and in-service training for judges, prosecutors, judicial police and other judicial personnel.
 - (1) Formative education: The Central Police University (hereinafter referred to as the “Police University”) and the Taiwan Police College (hereinafter referred to as the “Police College”) have incorporated human rights and the rule of law into their formative education to instill proper law enforcement concepts in students. At the Police University, the four-year undergraduate program has included a dedicated human rights course titled Constitution and Human Rights Protection, which highlights key principles of human rights protection. Courses on the rule of law cover administrative law, the Criminal Code, the Code of Criminal Procedure, and so forth. Furthermore, the Human Rights Education Manual was revised annually on a rolling basis from 2021 to 2024 to stay current with evolving standards. The human rights curriculum for the Regular Police Officer Program at the Police College has included courses on the Constitution, gender equality, domestic violence management, human rights conventions, multiculturalism, other related topics. The courses on the rule of law have covered criminal law, police regulations, traffic regulations, and similar topics. In addition, to strengthen human rights awareness, the Police College has regularly organized special lectures and seminars to enhance students' understanding of human rights and the rule of law.
 - (2) In-service education: From 2021 to 2024, the National Police Agency of the MOI mandated that all law enforcement agencies must hold annual training courses that prioritize human rights education for police officers. Some courses covered such topics as law enforcement in the implementation of the two covenants, the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities; legal education and police officers' required attitudes and skills; gender issues and gender mainstreaming in law enforcement; guidelines for police officers handling foreigner-related cases and the use of interpreters; understanding the Stalking and Harassment Prevention Act; conducting thorough investigations and protecting human rights—police interviews and the rights of persons with disabilities; case studies of police raids and stops-and-checks under the Police Power Exercise Act; and amendments to the Sexual Harassment Prevention Act, the Gender Equality in Employment Act, and the Gender Equity Education Act (also known as “the three gender equality laws”).

129. Out of respect for human dignity and human rights, related courses on the ICCPR and ICESCR, gender equality, indigenous rights, children’s rights, labor rights, disability rights, elderly rights, and CEDAW have been enhanced to improve judicial officials’ professional knowledge about the rights of defendants and victims, gender equality awareness, antidiscrimination concepts, protections for people with disabilities, and multicultural sensitivity. Online courses have also been organized for training for judges and courts have been requested to organize their own training programs.
130. Human rights courses are now included as part of basic training for lawyers. These courses emphasize topics such as the roles of and defense strategies for criminal lawyers, wrongful cases, postconviction reviews, parental rights and child support in divorce cases, employment-related constitutional lawsuits before interpretation, severance pay, and occupational hazards, lawyers’ public participation, constitutional awareness and human rights conventions, family affairs and protection of the rights of the disadvantaged, and practical work on gender equality issues. Preservice training for lawyers includes courses on human rights conventions, legal aid, public participation, the Constitutional Court, and criminal, civil, and administrative litigation.
131. The MOND adheres to the Guidelines on Law Education for Military Personnel by requiring all military officers to provide training to subordinates on the ICCPR and ICESCR, along with the ICCPR/ICESCR Enforcement Act, the UN Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, human rights cases, and issues concerning the rights of military personnel. Additionally, international human rights and humanitarian laws have been incorporated into training courses to promote human rights awareness in the military. The human rights education material “Two Covenants Human Rights Stories for the R.O.C. Army” was completed in 2018. Promote human rights education in the R.O.C. Armed Forces. From 2021 to 2024, 10 human rights issues and cases in the military were collected and compiled, and the second edition of the “Two Covenants Human Rights Stories for the R.O.C. Army” is set to be published. Furthermore, to strengthen awareness of gender equality, military personnel and supervisors undergo a minimum of three hours of training on gender mainstreaming annually in the form of special classes, ad hoc in-class training, and keynote speeches. Gender equality-related laws are also introduced through legal education, helping military personnel improve their understanding of laws and regulations.
132. The National Police Agency, MOI and its affiliated police agencies have incorporated courses of human rights and gender equality in their training. The Central Police University and the Taiwan Police College have subsumed CEDAW and gender equality related issues into their curriculum planning and keynote speeches, to increase gender equality and human rights awareness among police leaders, field officers, teachers, and students. To raise the enforcement officers’ awareness of human rights, the MOI has formulated human rights education and training programs and edited instruction manuals of human trafficking prevention, a compilation of related laws and regulations, and booklets of “Rights of Victims of Human Trafficking” in multiple languages which were issued for use by law enforcement agencies and prosecutors’ offices. To align with international mechanisms and trends for the protection of human trafficking victims, Taiwan has made substantial revisions to the Human Trafficking Prevention Act, which was took effect on January 1, 2024.
133. Courses on domestic violence prevention, sexual assault prevention, child and youth protection, elderly protection, and the protection of people with disabilities have been provided to enhance the human rights awareness of protective services social workers. Human rights education has also been incorporated into professional medical ethics and core clinical competencies for recently graduated doctors.

134. To enhance teachers' awareness of gender and human rights, the MOE revised the Republic of China Directions Regarding Teachers' Professionalism: Stages of Pre-service Teacher Education and Criteria Governing Pre-service Teacher Education Programs, requiring universities that provide teacher education to incorporate topics such as gender equality education into their curriculum planning through professional competence indicators.
 - (1) Since 2018, human rights education (including CEDAW-related education) and gender equality education have been incorporated into pre-service teacher education courses. The MOE conducts annual advocacy and monitoring of course offerings. From 2022 to 2024, an average of approximately 39,000 pre-service teachers completed these courses each year. In 2024, the ministry also launched the Subsidy Program for Universities to Offer Gender Equality Education Courses for Teacher Education aimed at strengthening pre-service teachers' knowledge of gender equality teaching and related legal frameworks, as well as enhancing their capacity to prevent gender-related incidents on campus. In its first year, 12 teacher-training universities received funding to implement the program.
 - (2) From 2021 to 2024, teacher-training universities were subsidized to conduct 11 sessions of in-service gender equality capacity building classes, with a total of 214 teachers participating.
135. For detailed information on the academic implementation of gender equality education, see Article 10 of the convention-specific document.
136. In order to advance the rights of minorities and protect cultural diversity, the NCC has implemented policies and regulations that encourage television and radio companies to ensure measures on promoting gender equality, the protection of children or juveniles, and cultural diversity are in place. The NCC also keeps these enterprises informed on national human rights policies and laws.
137. Every year, the MOL organizes advocacy seminars on workplace gender equality and sexual harassment prevention, which are supplemented by media coverage and informational websites dedicated to workplace gender equality. The purpose of these measures is to promote public understanding of the provisions of the Act of Gender Equality in Employment, which are included in the scope of labor inspections to encourage enterprises to comply.

Measures Taken to Enhance Social Involvement in Human Rights Protection

138. The Foundation for Women's Rights Promotion and Development was set up with sponsorship from the MOI in 1997 (re-organized in 2013 in conjunction with the Executive Yuan's organizational change, and reports to the MOHW). Since 2008, the Foundation has also been authorized by the Ministry to organize the Taiwan Women's Center, which aims to consolidate the protection of women's rights; organize related studies, communications, and personnel training programs on the promotion and development of women's rights; proactively initiate exchanges between domestic and international women's organizations and exchanges on information relating gender issues; and facilitate dialogue between the government and civil society. Professional books and publications on CEDAW-related issues have been released since 2009. Meetings among public and private sectors and empowerment workshops for NGOs, among other activities, have been proactively organized to work with the government in the joint implementation of CEDAW.
139. To strengthen promotion of the human rights of indigenous peoples, the Council of Indigenous Peoples allocates an annual budget to sponsor events that promote the basic rights of indigenous peoples and cultural, educational, and industrial development-related campaigns organized by civil society groups. It also subsidizes individuals or groups attending international conferences.
140. The Taiwan Foundation for Democracy was founded with sponsorship from the MOFA. It aims to promote the development of democracy and human rights and maximize the involvement of NGOs in global democracy. The Foundation subsidizes local and foreign academic institutions, think tanks, private-sector organizations, NGOs, and domestic political parties to promote democracy and human rights or attend international conferences related to human rights or international democracy exchange programs. The Foundation regularly publishes the Taiwan Democracy Quarterly and the English journal Taiwan Journal of Democracy.

141. The National Human Rights Museum under the MOC has carried out the restoration of historical scenes in the Human Rights Memorial Park in stages through rigorous historical research and oral interviews: In 2015, restoration of the Ren-Ai Building, a detention center scene, in the Jingmei White Terror Memorial Park was completed. In February 2023, the location of the trials for the Kaohsiung Incident, was completed and the site opened to the public. In April 2024, restoration of Ankang Reception House, an interrogation scene, was also completed. The collection of relevant human rights historical archives grew substantially, including approximately 250,000 pages of digital archives, with a total of 6,595 main case files (main case files plus 14,500 supplementary files). Furthermore, assistance was provided to local governments and non-governmental organizations in promoting human rights historical materials research and education. From 2020 to 2024, subsidies for 30 sessions of local governments' human rights educational activities and 339 NGO cases were approved.
142. The MOE Human Rights and Civic Education Mid-Range Plan was amended in 2016, with an implementation period from 2017 to 2021. To continue the promotion of human rights education, it was revised to the "MOE Human Rights and Civic Education Program" in 2022. The principle for the implementation of the program focuses on a systematic, integrative, comprehensive, executive, extensive, and forward-looking approach. It consolidates diverse resources belonging to the government, communities, and private organizations to establish an environment for student-oriented human rights and civic education based on the four strategies of "building a friendly campus environment that respects human rights and values civic engagement," "developing and implementing human rights and civic education curricula and course materials," "enhancing teachers' professional ethics and knowledge of human rights, civic engagement, and the rule of law," and "promoting ideals and implementing actions for enhancing human rights and civic education" and 23 work indicators.
143. The MOHW is committed to promoting children's rights and protecting the rights of persons with disabilities. It has cooperated with local governments, civic society organizations, and media outlets , as well as children and youths, to raise awareness of the rights of children and persons with disabilities through a diverse range of educational activities.
144. Easy read, braille, sign language, audio book, and child friendly versions of the second report for the Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC) and the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD) have been produced. These versions have been distributed to local governments, public libraries, special education schools, and national organizations. To protect the rights of people with disabilities, the 2020 People with Disabilities Rights Protection Act draft amendment included the principles of reasonable accommodation and universal design, stipulating that agencies, schools, institutions, enterprises, and organizations make necessary, reasonable, and proportional accommodations for people with disabilities. Additionally, plans for public buildings, public facilities, event venues, accessible transportation facilities, transportation services, internet platforms, everyday communication, as well as information and communications technologies and systems, must be made based on universal design principles. The Legal Aid Program for People with Disabilities was also established to provide necessary legal assistance to people with disabilities.
145. Between 2015 and 2024, the Feedback Fund of the Public Welfare Lottery was used to subsidize governments at all levels and private organizations. Private resources were combined to promote victim protection and gender-based violence prevention, with subsidies totaling NT$1,985,199,000 being granted for this purpose. In addition, subsidies totaling NT$1,930,697,167 were allocated from the Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault Prevention Fund from 2016 to 2024 to support government agencies and private organizations engaging in the prevention of domestic violence, sexual assault, and sexual harassment.

146. Since 2005, budget that provides financial support for the Legal Aid Foundation has been allocated by the Judicial Yuan pursuant to the provisions of the Legal Aid Act in order to provide the necessary legal aid to individuals who do not have the financial resources or cannot be protected by the law due to other reasons. Between 2020 and 2024, the Judicial Yuan donated NT$55 million to the Foundation and subsidized NT$7,007,335,000 of its operating budget. At present, the Legal Aid Foundation has established 22 branches in counties and cities across Taiwan. The number of regular case applications and aid approved, and legal consultation from 2021 to 2024 are shown in Table 40. To enable detainees to obtain sufficient legal resources and promote the protection of their rights, the Legal Aid Foundation has stepped up its efforts in prison services through its nationwide branches since 2016, informing inmates that they are eligible to apply via written correspondence for various types of legal aid offered by the Foundation. In 2024, the Foundation’s branches conducted 534 legal education and consultation activities for prisoners, and provided case acceptance and legal assistance services in detention centers and prisons.

Table 40 Legal Aid Application and Grant Status for Regular Cases, and Legal Consultation of Legal Aid Foundation

Unit: cases; %

Year	No. of applications for regular cases (A)	Number of regular cases granted legal aid (B)	Percentage of cases for which legal aid is granted to total applications (%) (C)=(B)/(A)	Number of legal consultation cases
2021	75,722	51,424	67.91	78,761
2022	85,625	56,718	66.24	90,825
2023	87,466	55,890	63.90	114,551
2024	87,678	55,567	63.38	119,547

147. The MOJ founded the Association for Victims Support and supervises its victims rights protection services. Between 2021 and 2024, the Ministry provided the association with subsidies of NT$66,120,789, NT$65,347,000, NT$127,057,000, and NT$267,340,000, respectively.

148. The MOJ oversees the Taiwan After-care Association and the Fuchien After-care Association, which assist former convicts. The Ministry also subsidizes other private-sector organizations assisting the rehabilitated. Between 2021 and 2024, the Ministry provided the association with subsidies of NT$55,928,000, NT$43,322,000, NT$86,454,000, and NT$104,920,000, respectively. Subsidies were provided for 76 cases.

International Cooperation, Development and Assistance

149. The International Cooperation and Development Fund (TaiwanICDF) is an institution that specializes in providing foreign aid. It organizes various international cooperation projects with partner countries and helps promote government official development assistance (ODA) programs. The budget for the ODA of Taiwan devoted to international collaboration in 2022 totaled around US$432 million, accounting for 0.055% of the gross national income (GNI) of Taiwan. In 2023, the MOFA commissioned the TaiwanICDF to send 20 technical, medical, and investment and trade service missions consisting of 210 technicians, substitute service draftees, and college interns to 19 countries in the Asia Pacific, West Asia, Africa, Caribbean, and Latin America. They engaged in 80 projects covering agriculture, animal husbandry, gardening, aquaculture, technical and vocational education, Chinese language education, ICT, industry, trade and investment, public health, and medical care. Small and medium enterprises, economic and trade experts, and volunteers were also sent to countries with diplomatic ties to Taiwan to conduct short- to mid-term guidance or provide consultancy services. Personnel from friendly developing countries were also invited to Taiwan to receive education and training, and participate in seminars. Scholarship programs were provided to undergraduate, graduate, and PhD students to help partner countries cultivate talents.

150. In 2014, the MOL began accepting missions to organize career training programs for young people living in Pacific island allies to help them develop professional skills and capabilities. It has assisted Tuvalu, Kiribati, Marshall Islands, Nauru, Palau, and the Solomon Islands in developing local professionals and human resources for the labor market.
151. Since 2015, the MOFA established the Global Cooperation and Training Framework (GCTF) with the United States, and has cooperated with Japan, Australia and like-minded countries to organize international training camps to assist countries in building capacity on global issues and strengthen multilateral cooperation. Previous themes included COVID-19 epidemic prevention, women's right to public participation, human rights practices for people with disabilities, and women's empowerment (women's economic autonomy), international humanitarian aid, human rights in the digital age, and the promotion of gender equality and justice, all of which were part and parcel of advancing human rights protection.
152. In 2016, the APEC Skills Development Capacity Building Alliance (ASD-CBA) project was initiated, and two APEC Skills Development Capacity Building Centers were established in Taiwan to help promote high-quality growth in the Asia-Pacific region and strengthen talent training exchanges in the same region. Since 2020, ASD-CBA has taken on Women's Economic Empowering, New Media Digital Upskilling (WEDU) as the main project, and gradually implemented a continuous multi-stage initiative.
153. Taiwan has been an active participant in international collaborative campaigns for foreign aid and has entered bilateral agreements, memorandums, and cooperation frameworks on agricultural cooperation with many countries to promote various international agricultural cooperation efforts through bilateral agricultural meetings and consultations. The TaiwanICDF, for instance, offers assistance on developing agriculture and fishery industries through technical cooperation and related training. On June 21, 2023, Taiwan signed the Taiwan-Thailand Fisheries Cooperation Implementation Agreement with Thailand.
154. Taiwan, the United States, and Australia jointly funded the "APEC Women and the Economy Sub-Fund" in 2017 to promote economic empowerment for women, improve their employment environment, and promote women rights development. In 2023, Taiwan put forth the "Promote Gender Equality and Inclusion in Digital Health Tech for Caregivers" project, jointly supported by Australia, Canada, Japan, South Korea, Malaysia, Mexico, Peru, the Philippines, the United States, Vietnam, and Thailand. A hybrid international workshop was held in Taipei on September 10 and 11, 2024. In 2022, Taiwan also signed a cooperation agreement with the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (EBRD), and became a founding donor of the bank's newly-established Action for Equality and Gender Multi-donor Cooperation Fund (A4EG). Both parties are joining forces to assist recipient countries in improving gender equality and the economic participation rights of disadvantaged groups.
155. In October 2020, Taiwan and the Kingdom of Eswatini, our African ally, launched a three-year program, the Capacity Building Project for Microfinance Ecosystem Focusing on Grassroots Women

- in Eswatini, to provide technical assistance and consulting services to women and microfinance institutions in Eswatini. Taiwan also sponsored the establishment of the Women Business Start-up Microfinance Revolving Fund to assist Eswatini women in starting their own businesses. The fund was officially opened to applications from Eswatini citizens in mid-February 2024.
156. To fulfill international social responsibilities, Taiwan is committed to strengthening medical cooperation with allies and friendly countries and helping them attain third goal of the United Nations' 2030 Sustainable Development Goals: ensure healthy lives and promote well-being for all at all ages. From 2020 to 2024, Taiwan engaged in a number of international exchanges and cooperation projects with the United States, the European Union, the Czech Republic, Lithuania, Poland, Slovakia, and various Asian countries on the research and development of epidemic prevention technologies, medical supplies, and equipment. Taiwan also cooperated with the Holy See to promote medical humanitarian assistance. In addition, Taiwan International Health Action (TaiwanIHA) continued to organize international medical collaboration and emergency medical aid programs in accordance with diplomatic policies. The North American Taiwanese Medical Association sent a medical team that was led by Dr. Shen Yu-ming and comprised 30 members, including internists, surgeons, gynecologists, dermatologists, dentists, nurses, pharmacists, acupuncturists, and assistants, to Paraguay to provide free medical services.
 157. During the global COVID-19 pandemic from 2020 to 2023, Taiwan collaborated closely with like-minded countries through a democratic epidemic prevention model, providing donations of anti-epidemic supplies, and proactively assisting friendly countries and countries in need. At the 2022 Global COVID-19 Summit, Taiwan pledged to donate US$1.5 million as part of our determination and contribution to work hand in hand with the United States and the international community in the global fight against the epidemic. The relevant funds served to improve the global public health environment.
 158. Taiwan organized "A Civil Society Dialogue on Securing Religious Freedom in the Indo-Pacific Region" in March 2019, and 80 religious figures and representatives of human rights groups from more than 10 countries in the Indo-Pacific region attended the event. Sam Brownback, the United States Ambassador-at-Large for International Religious Freedom, also visited Taiwan to attend the event. Brownback gave a talk and exchanged views with our government on promoting religious freedom. Since 2019, Taiwan has donated to the US State Department's International Religious Freedom Fund over five years, contributing to global religious freedom through practical actions.
 159. Taiwan became an observer to the International Religious Freedom Alliance (IRFBA) in July 2022, and has successively signed nine joint declarations of IRFBA calling on countries to respect religious freedom. Taiwan's Ambassador-at-Large for Religious Freedom Pusin Tali attended the IRFBA Ministerial Conference in Prague, Czech Republic in December 2023 to share our government's efforts in promoting freedom of religious belief.
 160. In 2022, Taiwan co-organized vocational training programs with non-governmental organization Turkish Red Crescent (Kızılay) to help improve the socio-economic status of refugee women. In 2023, Taiwan also cooperated with the Turkish nongovernmental organization SGDD-ASAM to implement a medical service project for earthquake-stricken areas in Turkey. The project set up mobile medical clinics to provide medical services to earthquake victims.
 161. Tibetans in exile mostly reside in countries such as India, Nepal, and Bhutan. Tibetan communities often lack medical, sanitary, and education resources. The government has worked with domestic NGOs in the implementation of humanitarian aid programs for Tibetan communities overseas, including training for local medical and nursing personnel as well as volunteer clinic services, health education, information technology education, and disaster prevention training. It has also assisted in holding Tibet Assistance Volunteers Training Camps. As of 2024, 2,101 people had been trained to provide aid to Mongolian and Tibetan communities. This was in line with the trend of providing international humanitarian aid.

162. To help independent public welfare media in low- and middle-income countries survive the COVID-19 crisis, Taiwan donated a total of US$1 million to the International Fund for Public Interest Media (IFPIM) of the United States between 2022 and 2024, joining forces the United States and other like-minded countries to improve the global media environment.
163. Each of these programs implemented by Taiwan is based on the partner countries' top priorities and national development policies. These programs align with the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals, which are based on human rights and focus on human well-being. They undergo detailed assessments of effectiveness and sustainability. Management and supervision are conducted during and after implementation, so that they reflect reality and improvement takes place on a rolling basis. After completion, reviews of the programs' implementation will be carried out and reports generated. These efforts aim to achieve the goal of improving the well-being of recipient countries. To prevent partner countries from misusing the information and communication technologies provided by Taiwan, when commissioning the TaiwanICDF to carry out relevant international cooperation and development projects in the future, the MOFA may add a morality clause to contracts and other legal documents. For example, it may specify that the content and technology of Taiwan's cooperation plans must not be used for purposes that violate such values as freedom, democracy, and human rights in order to safeguard universal human rights values.

F. Reporting Procedures at the National Level

164. Although the UN refuses to accept the CEDAW letter of ratification from the Republic of China (Taiwan), Taiwan presented its First National Report on Human Rights in 2009 and established the reporting system for CEDAW, submitting national reports once every four years thereafter. The second, third and fourth national reports on CEDAW were submitted in 2013, 2017 and 2021, respectively. The Department of Gender Equality of the Executive Yuan, as the competent authority for the reports, is responsible for coordinating and supervising the drafts of the respective central government agencies and holding training sessions. The agencies must proactively report their gender equality implementation statuses, challenges, and solutions for improvement.
165. Taiwan has established mechanisms for drafting national reports and all central government agencies are required to take part in the drafting process. Statistical data and implementation status at the national level include data from local governments. Taiwan has held related domestic review meetings and invited NGOs, scholars, and experts outside the government to participate, debate drafts of the reports, and provide recommendations to ensure the suitability of the contents. In addition, as the UN cannot review Taiwan's reports, Taiwan designed a review system similar to that of the UN and invited international human rights experts to visit Taiwan every four years (starting in 2013) to review the reports and publish concluding observations and recommendations. Related procedures for the drafting of the national reports on core human rights covenants and the organization of international review meetings are provided in Figure 3, while related task assignments are provided in Figure 4.
166. To actively implement the Conclusions and Recommendations issued following Taiwan's Fourth National Report on CEDAW, the Executive Yuan issued an operational plan in May 2023, requesting relevant competent authorities to plan specific measures. Between June and August 2023, nine review meetings were held, bringing together civil society organizations, experts and scholars, and relevant government agencies to discuss the implementation of the Conclusions and Recommendations. Progress by each competent authority has been tracked every six months. To assist government departments in reviewing the implementation status of the CEDAW Conclusions and Recommendations and identifying areas requiring further effort, and to gather civil society input prior to initiating the drafting of the Fifth CEDAW National Report, these measures have leveraged the expertise of domestic experts and civil society organizations to help government agencies focus on current issues and develop forward-looking strategies to accelerate implementation. Accordingly, mid-term review meetings were held on April 29 and 30, 2024. The 197 participants included representatives from the five branches of government, 22 agencies, and 46 civil society organizations. Through these measures, relevant authorities and civil society organizations engaged in thorough dialogue. Civil society input was incorporated into policy considerations, actively strengthening efforts to promote and implement gender equality.
167. To enrich the content of Taiwan's Fifth CEDAW National Report and to ensure that personnel from the Executive Yuan, its subordinate ministries and agencies, and the Legislative, Judicial, Examination, and Control Yuans involved in drafting the report had a clear understanding of the report's review system, drafting framework, guidelines, and key points, the Executive Yuan issued a circular in March 2025 providing drafting guidance. The circular outlined the core issues and key content for each article of the Fifth CEDAW National Report, including the implementation status and outcomes of the Conclusions and Recommendations from the Fourth CEDAW National Report (including responses submitted for review meetings and resolutions from mid-term review meetings); the reasons, difficulties encountered, alternative measures, and future plans for any recommendations not yet implemented; and an explanation of gender equality issues under each article of CEDAW (including issues identified by international experts or domestic organizations during the period of the previous National Report) covering their current status, challenges, and progress. This guidance was intended to assist personnel from relevant agencies in submitting accurate and comprehensive information for the preparation of the National Report.

168. To strengthen dialogue and exchanges of views between government agencies and civil society organizations during the drafting of Taiwan's Fifth CEDAW National Report, and to enrich the report's content, the Executive Yuan held four public consultation forums on the drafting of the report on July 16, 18, 23, and 24, 2025, at the Chang Yung-Fa Foundation International Conference Center. Information on registration for these forums was made publicly available on the Executive Yuan's GEC website and the CEDAW in Action portal, and notifications were sent to the Legislative Yuan, Judicial Yuan, Examination Yuan, Control Yuan, agencies under the Executive Yuan, and local governments, encouraging them to forward the information to groups concerned with women's rights and gender equality. Civil society organizations that had previously submitted parallel reports on responses to lists of issues, or had attended international review meetings, were also actively invited to participate. The forums were organized by the Executive Yuan's Department of Gender Equality in coordination with the agencies responsible for drafting each article of the National Report. They solicited and collected feedback from civil society organizations to ensure the report's content was comprehensive. To broaden public participation and ensure accessibility for persons with disabilities, the forums provided an accessible venue, full sign language interpretation, and real-time captioning, and were simultaneously live-streamed on the Department of Gender Equality's Gender Equality Observatory Facebook page.
169. All four forums were live-streamed and considered the needs of persons with disabilities by providing wheelchair-accessible seating, sign language interpretation, and real-time captioning. Caregivers were also encouraged to bring children to attend; two representatives from civil society organizations attended with children. During the forums, written feedback on the draft report and gender equality policies was also accepted from civil society organizations and the public to serve as reference for subsequent revisions by the relevant agencies. A total of 348 participants attended the forums, including two members of the Executive Yuan's GEC, one member of the International Review Advisory Group, representatives from the five branches of government and 40 affiliated agencies, and 34 civil society organizations.
170. In September of 2025, opinions were solicited via email from the 18 members of the Executive Yuan's GEC. The draft report was subsequently submitted to and approved by the second meeting of the International Review Advisory Group for Taiwan's Fifth CEDAW National Report, held on September 16. Based on the solicited opinions and the meeting conclusions, the Department of Gender Equality, together with relevant competent authorities, further revised and supplemented the report to ensure its completeness. Following review at the preparatory meeting of the current GEC, the report was completed and published.

III. Information on Nondiscrimination, Equality, and Access to Remedy

G. Nondiscrimination and Equality

Inequality Caused by Economic and Social Conditions

171. Women's rights: Taiwan enacted the Enforcement Act of CEDAW in 2011, incorporating CEDAW, which was adopted by the United Nations in 1979, into domestic law. The Act aims to eliminate discrimination against women, enhance women's development, protect gender-related human rights, and promote gender equality. Pursuant to the Act, the government submits a national report every four years, inviting relevant experts, scholars and representatives of non-governmental organizations to review it. The fourth national report was completed in 2022.
172. Rights of children and youth: Taiwan established the Implementation Act of the Convention on the Rights of the Child to incorporate the CRC, which was adopted by the United Nations in 1989, into domestic law. This will help ensure that children in need enjoy special care and assistance, facilitate the full and harmonious development of their character, and develop their capabilities to live independently in society.
173. Rights of persons with disabilities: Taiwan enacted the Act to Implement the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities to implement the CRPD, which was adopted by the United Nations in 2006. The CRPD was incorporated into domestic laws to protect the rights of persons with disabilities, ensure equal participation opportunities, and eliminate discrimination and inappropriate treatment in all aspects of life for them.
174. Rights of the elderly: To implement the United Nations' Principles for Older Persons of 1991 aimed at ensuring the independence, participation, care, self-fulfillment, and dignity of senior citizens, the government established the National Pension Insurance program to protect individuals without employment insurance and provide basic economic security for the elderly, as well as an allowance for low- and middle-income senior citizens. In accordance with the Senior Citizens Welfare Act, the elderly receive a 50% discount when taking domestic state-run or private marine, land, and air public transportation; accessing recreational places; and visiting cultural and educational facilities. Community service stations have also been set up and other resources made available to senior citizens through public-private sector collaboration.
175. The government works with civil society groups to set up community care stations and put into practice the concepts of elderly and preventive care services for communities. As of 2024, it had created 4,993 stations across the country, which provided home visits on more than 1,660,000 occasions, telephone greetings on more than 1,910,000 occasions, and meal services on more than 19,650,000 occasions. Health promotion activities were attended by more than 22,630,000 people. In addition, the stations also strengthened caring services for seniors who live alone. As of 2024, they had completed more than 7,480,000 telephone greetings; more than 3,620,000 home care visits; more than 70,000 escorted medical care visits; and more than 5,010,000 living assistance service visits.
176. Workers' rights: To implement the International Labor Organization Convention 111 Discrimination in Respect of Employment and Occupation of 1958, Taiwan enacted the Employment Service Act which specifies 16 prohibitions on employment discrimination based on attributes such as age, place of birth, gender, and sexual orientation. Star signs and blood type were added in 2018 so that all workers are accorded the right to equality in employment.
177. Immigration service personnel visit outlying townships to provide immigrants with relevant information, help submit applications, or refer them to new immigrant service centers. This helps minimize the urban and rural differences in access to services and resources. Taiwan also promotes convenient mobile services that allow new immigrants to enjoy a more convenient life, receive employment information, and attend special family education forums, as well as informative events focusing on health, welfare, and licensing laws and regulations.

178. The Gender Equality in Employment Act, and Article 5, Paragraph 1 of the Employment Service Act prohibit gender discrimination and 18 other types of discrimination in employment. To enhance public awareness of workplace equal rights laws, the MOL organizes 25 workplace equal rights seminars each year and continues to strengthen the promotion of relevant regulations through various channels such as websites and Facebook. To facilitate employment for the homeless, new immigrants, and indigenous peoples, various public employment service institutions provide customized employment services, including employment counseling, job matching, employment promotion activities, and more. These measures aim to build their work confidence, develop job vacancies, and use employment promotion measures such as temporary work subsidies, hiring subsidies and awards, and job training and readjustment programs to assist specific groups in finding employment.
179. Taiwan enacted the National Health Insurance Act and related regulations and measures to protect the right of all citizens, including marginalized groups, to receive medical care. Everyone has access to necessary medical care in the event of illness, injury, or maternity. The provisions of the National Health Insurance Act parallel the topics outlined in the relevant international human rights instruments concerning the right to health.
180. Taiwan enacted the Housing Act and relevant regulations and measures to protect citizens' housing rights, improve the residential market, enhance living standards, and allow all citizens to live in appropriate housing and enjoy a dignified living environment.
181. In order to prevent defendants in detention from being discriminated against due to their detainee status, the government has added a new article to the Detention Act to safeguard defendants' rights. In addition, to enhance the protection of refugees, asylum seekers, and their families, the government has drafted the Refugee Act. Furthermore, prohibition against discrimination in kinship and inheritance is prescribed in the Civil Code. For instance, the Civil Code no longer differentiates patrilineality and matrilineality with respect to the adoption of a spouse's surname. It also notes that the adoption of a spouse's surname is not the norm. In addition, it allows spouses to restore their original name anytime during the marriage. A married couple's place of domicile shall be agreed upon by both the husband and the wife. If no agreement can be made or reached, the parties may apply to the court for a fair ruling so as to protect their equal rights and prevent any discriminatory behavior. For more information on women's equal rights to inherit property, please refer to Note 27 of the fourth national report on the ICCPR.

H. Access to Remedy

182. For relevant information on remedies and legal aid for violations of rights, please refer to Notes 44, 105, 106, and 146 of this report.

Protection of Equal Rights of Various Vulnerable Groups

183. To protect adults should they lose their capacity for judgment, the government has implemented a longstanding system for legal adult guardianship and declaration of assistantship. Taiwan added the guardianship by agreement system to the Civil Code in 2019 to allow an individual to designate his/her future guardian when he/she is still capable of expressing his/her intent, rather than have the court select one should the need arise. This measure, based on the principle of voluntary choice, upholds human dignity and helps promote the interests of the individual.

184. The Primary and Junior High School Act and the Compulsory Education Act protect the right of each individual to compulsory education. To ensure equal right to education, most students are not required to take an exam for admission under the Senior High School Education Act, and tuition is waived under certain criteria. Universities have adopted diversified admission programs and admission by recommendation, which help balance the urban and rural differences in access to education resources. Disadvantaged applicants are entitled to bonus scores or prioritized acceptance for admission application. The number of participating schools increased to 60 in 2024. Meanwhile, colleges and universities are encouraged to recruit disadvantaged students through special talent selection avenues. Disadvantaged students may apply to a university department or program if they meet its set criteria with respect to their professional background, special skills, experiences, expertise, and achievements. In the 2025 academic year, 635 departments of 59 universities provided 1,895 admission slots for disadvantaged students. Universities are required to accept students with different educational qualifications (including overseas Taiwanese students, children of new immigrants, economically disadvantaged students, local students, and experimental education students), and are guided to establish a comprehensive learning counseling mechanism for disadvantaged students. Considering the impact of diversified admission programs on disadvantaged students, the government reduced or waived registration fees for various exams for students from low-income and medium-to-low income households. In addition, the written review of personal applications has been made electronic to reduce their burdens of taking tests. The government enacted the Special Education Act and the Indigenous Peoples Education Act to provide more extensive protections of the education rights of various disadvantaged groups. Moreover, in order to strengthen the concept of equality between men and women, the Gender Equity Education Act expressly prohibits any form of discrimination based on gender and protects women's right to education.

185. In order to ensure the right to education of students and children with disabilities, Article 25 of The Special Education Act prescribes that preschools and schools at all levels must not reject admission for the reason of disability itself. Taiwan promotes the 12-Year Basic Education program, which includes compulsory education in elementary and junior high school. In addition to exam-free admission and selective recruitment channels that are available to all students, the government also provides adaptive counseling-based placement for senior high school and vocational high school students with physical or mental disabilities pursuing higher education. To safeguard and increase opportunities for higher education for students with disabilities, the MOE organizes admission interviews for students with disabilities each year to encourage universities and tertiary colleges to organize their own entrance exams for students with disabilities. The Regulations for Handling Complaints Concerning Special Education Students and Young Children were enacted to provide students with disabilities with remedies for inappropriate treatment (e.g., discrimination). Schools are required to appoint at least two external scholars, experts, representatives of parent organizations, or related special education professionals as members of the Student Grievance Evaluation Committee they had previously established (the same mechanisms apply to all students but special members shall be appointed for special education students).

186. Indigenous languages are deemed to be national languages and important cultural assets of Taiwan. The continuation and preservation of indigenous languages carries great importance and urgency. In 2024, the MOE and the Council of Indigenous Peoples jointly drafted an explanation of the Incentives to Indigenous Students Obtaining Indigenous Language Certification for Further Education, encouraging schools to help promote the current system for indigenous students to obtain certification for strengthening the inheritance of indigenous languages. This will protect their right to education, while achieving the goal of cultural preservation.
187. The Crime Victim Protection Act was amended and renamed the Crime Victims Rights Protection Act on February 8, 2023. The new law provides that relevant agencies should proactively provide rights information, litigation information, empowerment to participate in litigation, and other assistance services that are consistent with protection of human dignity (e.g., legal assistance, medical care, counseling, and life rehabilitation) to crime victims and their families based on their needs. The new law comprehensively reforms the crime victim compensation system, providing prompt payment and in a way most beneficial to crime victims, and establishing a dual track of crime victim compensation and civil claims. Furthermore, the crime victims protective order system and privacy protection regulations have also been amended; restorative justice promoted; professional knowledge of practitioners strengthened; and victim prevention awareness and other measures to protect the rights and interests of crime victims reinforced. The number of people serviced by the Association for Victims Support is shown in Tables 41 and 42.

188. Rights of rehabilitated offenders: The Taiwan After-Care Association is a foundation established with government donations. It assists the government in promoting rehabilitation and protection work. The Association cooperates with correctional institutions to provide counseling and skills training on a regular basis. To rehabilitated persons who are willing to accept services, the Association provides protective services including counseling on entering shelters, skills training, guidance on employment, education and medical care, accommodations, emergency assistance, visitation and care, subsidies on travel expenses, escort service to home or other locations, and small business start-up loans. In addition, the Association promotes family support and assistance service programs for rehabilitated offenders, providing shuttle services for returning home, strengthening parental awareness, facilitating family relationship, and enhancing family acceptance. The program also expands the scope of protection services to families, assisting rehabilitated offenders and their family members in adapting to life, tackling financial, employment, and schooling issues, enhancing support, and strengthening their social, health, and labor policy network. All of these serve to assist rehabilitated persons in returning to society. Data on the relevant services of the Taiwan After-Care Association is shown in Tables 43 to 52.

Other Specific Measures for Attaining Equality

189. The Directorate-General of Personnel Administration of the Executive Yuan provides monthly statistics regarding the gender distribution of political appointees in the Executive Yuan, to serve as reference in the recruitment of new officials when vacancies become available. From 2021 to 2024, the proportion of female political heads of government agencies amounted to 8.57%, 8.57%, 17.14% and 25.71%, respectively. The proportion of female political appointees increased from 11.11% to 21.74%. The Executive Yuan has increased the proportion of both the female political heads of government agencies and female political appointees.
190. Article 129 and Article 130 of the Constitution state that elections shall be carried out by universal, equal, and direct suffrage and by secret ballot, and any citizen who has attained the age of 20 shall have the right of election in accordance with the law. Therefore, the right of election is not restricted in any way by financial capability, gender, or educational criteria. Each person is entitled to one vote and all votes are equivalent. In addition, Article 15 of the Constitution states that “the right to live, the right to work, and the right to own property shall be guaranteed to the people.” Article 152 requires that “the State shall provide suitable opportunities for work to those persons who have the ability to work.” Article 4 of the Employment Services Act provides that [every national with working capability is equal in terms of the access to employment services,” and Article 5, Paragraph 1 of the same Act prohibits discrimination against any job applicant or employee on the basis of gender. The Gender Equality in Employment Act covers the prohibition of gender-based discrimination, prevention and correction of sexual harassment, and the measures for promoting equality in employment, thereby providing a set of comprehensive guarantees to protect gender equality in the workplace.
191. For the purposes of protecting the privacy of indigenous voters in urban areas, due to their relatively small numbers, as well as preventing election results from being exposed to the public and the principle of secret ballot from being violated, Article 57 of the Public Officials Election and Recall Act states that in an election of indigenous public officials, the election commission may, depending on the actual circumstances, adjust the establishment of polling stations in urban areas by adopting centralized voting in order to safeguard the rights of indigenous electors.
192. Taiwan will continue to promote balanced urban and rural development. From 2017 to 2021, it promoted the Heart of Town development initiative, which integrated core areas of promising towns with living area amenities; carried out revitalization projects in old urban areas; and improved the quality of public facilities. These efforts enhanced the living environment. In 2021, Taiwan continued its efforts by launching the Urban and Rural Landscape and Revitalization Environment Construction Plan in conjunction with the Executive Yuan’s Project to Accelerate Regional Revitalization. Through system integration, expansion of participation, professional dialogue, and establishment of systems, Taiwan took on the spatial and environmental enhancement of townships, support of value-added development of regional revitalization, and creation of charming towns with local characteristics. The regional revitalization efforts have encouraged young people to return to their hometowns.
193. Education for indigenous people has been a major concern for a long time. The more indigenous communities focus on receiving mainstream education, the faster they lose their own culture. Due to cultural differences, disparities exist between indigenous and non- indigenous students in the learning of math and science. Studies have found that curriculum and teaching materials are crucial to enhancing the education of indigenous peoples. Therefore, since 2009, the Ministry of Science and Technology has been promoting the Indigenous People Science Education Project, integrating the cultures of indigenous peoples into science teaching and development of science courses. In addition, since 2019, the MOE has been promoting the training of mathematics and science teachers in indigenous regions. The Council of Indigenous Peoples continuously assists the MOE in this regard through cooperation platforms. The cooperation information is as follows: 88 cases in 2021, 96 cases in 2022, 87 cases in 2023, 89 cases in 2024.

194. To proactively reduce ethnic discrimination, the government formulated the Guiding Directions for Enhancing Sensitivity and Attention to Indigenous Culture to prevent using the values of the majority or dominant mainstream ethnic group as the sole standard for system establishment, which may result in oppression or injustice to other ethnic groups. Cultural sensitivity charts are also provided to indigenous television stations and relevant ministries for reference to strengthen cultural exchanges among ethnic groups, and promote understanding and respect for indigenous culture.
195. In terms of education, the government has initiated the Program on Developing Indigenous Education (2021-2025) and expanded the scope of implementation of the Indigenous Culture and Multicultural Education curriculum program, with the goal of extending it to all citizens. Through the Project for Improvement and Integration of Indigenous Education Topics in Curricula approved by the MOE, four major implementation strategies are adopted to promote indigenous education: develop supplementary teaching materials; train and empower teachers; incorporate relevant courses in syllabi below senior high school level; and strengthen promotion through social education institutions. These strategies will help integrate indigenous education topics into the curriculum, and implement multicultural education.
196. In accordance with the Operation Directions for Granting Subsidy to Spatial Commemoration of Major Indigenous Historic and Cultural Events, we continue to carry out thematic projects on indigenous history and research projects on major historic events of indigenous peoples; publish related books, e.g., book series on major historic events of indigenous peoples, an introduction to indigenous history, an introduction to the indigenous movement, a handbook on the rights of indigenous peoples, and so forth; commission a professional crew to produce documentaries on major historic events of indigenous peoples; and construct a pluralistic historical perspective of indigenous peoples. These efforts enable the people of Taiwan to understand the history of indigenous peoples and the development of their rights, which promotes transitional justice and historical justice for indigenous peoples.

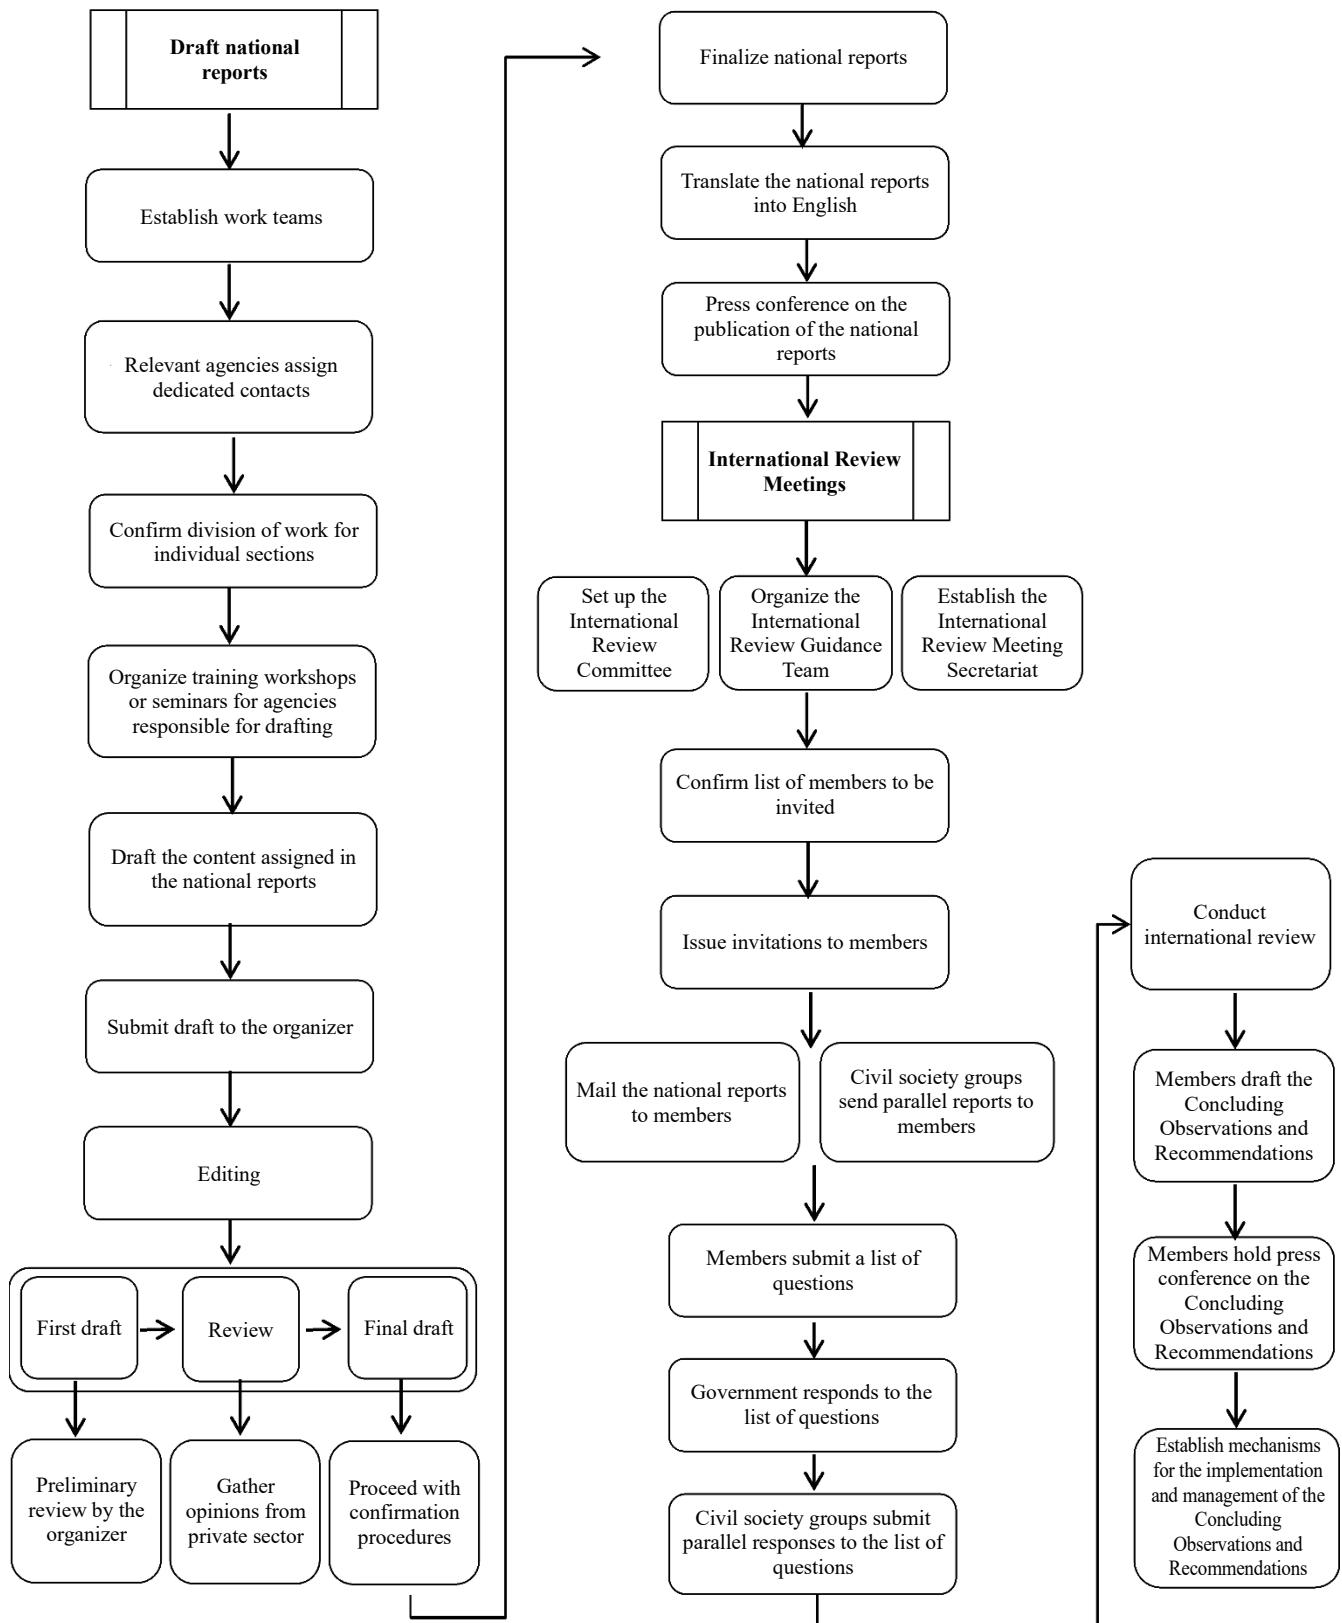

Various Educational Programs Advanced by the Government and Associated Promotional Activities

197. Since 2008, the government has been organizing a series of activities each year around the time of the United Nations-designated International Immigrant Day (December 18) to help citizens gain a deeper understanding of the value of cultural diversity. Coverage of these activities in Chinese and English media have strengthened respect for cultural diversity.
198. For schools below the senior high school level, customized educational plans shall be provided to students with disabilities through teamwork, and parents and guardians of students with disabilities shall be invited to participate in the formulation of these plans. Whenever necessary, parents may also ask relevant individuals to accompany them to these plan development sessions. With respect to special education curricula, teaching materials, teaching approaches, and evaluation methods, flexibility is essential. The suitability and applicability to the physical and mental characteristics as well as the needs of special education students must be taken into consideration.
199. Seminars on gender equality in employment and sexual harassment prevention are organized each year. They are supplemented by media coverage and websites dedicated to gender equality in employment. The purpose is to promote the understanding of the provisions of the Gender Equality in Employment Act by the general public. Furthermore, the items that are included in the scope of labor inspection, as required by the Gender Equality in Employment Act, serve to urge business enterprises to comply with the relevant provisions of the Act via gender equality in employment special inspections.

200. Amendments to the age of marriage (agreement to marriage), spouses, family, and inheritance laws under the Family and Succession chapters of the Civil Code are promoted in a variety of ways, including collaboration with radio stations, production of animations and promotional materials (available on the MOJ website and YouTube channel for public viewing and download), the MOJ's Instagram account, and the Public Welfare Service section of the Executive Yuan's official website (LED public service information). We also published the Civil Code Majority Guide (which includes new amendments to lowering the age of majority and the age of marriage/agreement to marriage) and an e-book, i.e., the Handbook on Rights Protection and Legal Issues in Marriage for public reference.
201. For successful rehabilitation cases, the government also presents the experiences and life stories of rehabilitated offenders to the public through various advocacy activities, production of promotional materials, volunteer participation, and media coverage to improve the understanding of the plights of rehabilitated offenders, and their entitled rights by the general public, and foster a friendly and accommodating environment to reduce discrimination and prejudice against them.
202. In response to the International Day of Persons with Disabilities, the MOHW holds the Golden Eagle Model Persons with Disabilities Awards and awareness activities to celebrate the day every year. Through diverse channels, we promote the outstanding deeds of Golden Eagle Model Persons with Disabilities Award winners and a series of activities for the International Day of Persons with Disabilities to enhance the people's attention and cultivate their correct understanding of issues related to disabilities, thereby achieving the goal of social inclusion.
203. To effectively protect the rights of veterans to education, employment, medical services, nursing, and care, the government promotes related education plans and promotional activities each year through a diverse range of media. A total of 1,552 seminars were held from 2020 to 2024 for 33,649 participants. With regard to the effectiveness of improving employment, 52,472 people were employed through the employment assistance program from 2020 to 2024. The number of people employed increased by 15,343 (41%) compared to that from 2015 to 2019.
204. The MOE organized multiple workshops and training programs to help familiarize educators on the essence and content of the Gender Equity Education Act and applicable laws, human rights education issues, and gender equity education. Subsidies have been provided since 2016 for local governments to foster a friendly campus, as well as undertaking student affairs and counseling, including the promotion of gender equity education, seminars, and workshops.
